Corruption? What Else?
Money 7½ Per Cent
The Smallest Mouse
He Opened the Door

— By Arthur Brisbane —

Copyright 1928, by Star Co.

THE Democratic keynote is "Republican corruption, Secretary Fall, Mr. Sinclair, Oil and Oil Spots."

Plenty of Republican corruption, but Democrats must find something better than that. Republicans will reply, "Old stuff. What have Fall, Sinclair and Doheny to do with Herbert Hoover? As well try to fasten Bill Tweed of the Democratic party to Woodrow Wilson."

The people know there is corruption. To their sorrow, they take much of it for granted. They hear about rotten politicians in Democratic New York grafting in every direction. They hear about other rotten politicians in Republican Washington, D. C., grafting as diligently as they know how, with an occasional Cabinet officer selling Government property to the highest bidder.

But all that doesn't decide a national election. The voters, mechanics, farmers, business men, will ask, "WHAT HAVE YOU TO OFFER? Tell us what YOU propose to do."

Hard to keep a squirrel on the ground, hard to keep Wall Street discouraged. Big men that control money yesterday put "call money," with which poor stock gamblers gamble, up to 7½.

In spite of that prices wouldn't go down. Some that sold short, thinking the moment "to leave the corpse" had arrived were busy "covering."

Do what you please, but don't sell this country short. It's too dangerous.

Mr. L. Buck, mighty hunter before the Lord, brings from Africa a blue wildcat, first ever seen by white man; a big gorilla, specimens of the gherzi and gebrazzi monkey tribes, and a pigmy mouse as small as a bee.

The question arises, were all these interesting creatures in the Garden of Eden, with the whale, dinosaur, flying lizards, ornithorynchus, kangaroo, giraffe and hoot owl? Or did they come gradually? If they were all there, which interested Cain and Abel most? Probably the pigmy mouse, although the boys had no pockets in which to hide it.

A picturesque life ended in Chicago, when "Big Tim" Murphy answered the door bell. A machine gun opened fire from an automobile, four men managing the gun. Murphy fell. His body, the police said, "looked like the top of a salt cellar, so many holes in it."

Murphy was a labor leader, a successful "racketeer," owned one of the finest gambling houses in Chicago—he had been tried twice for murder, failed for a $122,000 mail robbery. The machine gun is supposed to have avenged one of the murders for which he was tried, but not convicted.

Earnest Britishers don't like stabilization of the French franc. In 1915 and 1916, they bought a French war loan of 50,000,000 pounds sterling. It is worth less than 10,000,000 pounds to-

ROB GRAVE YARD OF $3000

Blowing open two safes in the office of Holy Cross Cemetery, Broadway, at Eastern ave., Malden, thieves today took $3,000.

The break was discovered by Joseph J. Walsh, assistant superintendent of the cemetery, when he opened the office, which is situated inside the cemetery gate opening from Broadway, which is part of the Newburyport turnpike.

Entrance to the building was gained by removing a screen and forcing the window. Fingerprint experts were assigned by Malden police.

DRIVER IS FIRE HERO

A truck driver was burned while playing the role of hero today in a spectacular fire in which flames, which shot 30 feet in the air, enveloped his truck, filled with oil for street dressing.

The fire broke out as the truck was passing through North Beacon st., Watertown, when gasses in a ventilator pipe exploded and ignited the oil covering the outside of the tank.

John J. Tomavewski of Broadway, Chelsea, the driver, shut off a valve, which prevented the flames from eating their way to the interior. He was badly burned about the hands and arms and was given first aid treatment by firemen.

FARMERS GET ALL THEY ASKED FOR, SAYS WALSH ABOUT THE PLATFORM

By KENNETH CLARK
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Houston, Tex., June 28—A strict law enforcement plank, sponsored by the Smith forces, pledging the Democratic Party to enforce rigidly the eighteenth amendment as well as all other provisions of the constitution, was written into the platform today by the resolutions sub committee

The platform draft was before the full committee on resolutions when the convention was called to order at 10:35 a. m. (12:35 p. m. Boston time).

The prohibition plank represents a compromise between the extreme wets and drys and follows a middle course as outlined by those leaders who are seeking to prevent a disruption of the convention on the dry issue.

So satisfactory was the agreement, said Senator Pittman of Nevada, chairman, that a minority report, either by the wets or the drys, is not anticipated.

In Wall Street today for a time it looked as it ra would head General Motors. It got within fractional distance of that stock as it raced up 4 to 180 1-2, but General Motors drew further away later as it touched 182 1-4, up 2 3-8. U. S. Steel was heavy, losing over a point.

NOBILE WILL FLY BACK TO AID RESCUE PARTY

Rome, June 28 (AP)—Gen. Umberto Nobile will return by air to direct the search for the icebound crew of the Italia, says a dispatch today in Lavoro y Italia.

The decision to permit the return of Gen. Nobile, says this paper, was made after physicians had determined that the mental and physical condition of the Italia's commander were satisfactory.

It was emphasized that Gen. Nobile had demanded authorization to fly back to his companions soon after he had been rescued and transported to Virgo Bay. Permission was denied him at the time because of the fact that he was suffering from exposure and injuries.

As soon as weather conditions are favorable he will proceed with either Major Maddalena or Major Penzo to explore the scene of the tragedy.

(Gen. Nobile's thrilling story of his life on floating ice will be found on Page 10.)

ASKS PUBLIC TO HELP STOP AUTO KILLINGS

In a determined effort to cut down the number of automobile fatalities, especially during the week of July 1 to 7, the general public was today called upon for the first time to join with the enforcing agencies in reporting drunken and reckless drivers.

Registrar of Motor Vehicles George A. Parker, after pointing out that 17 deaths occurred during the week including July 4 in 1926 and 22 in 1927, declares the time has come to deprive those who persist in driving in a foolhardy and dangerous manner of the privilege of operating.

"With the idea of preventing death and injury and removing hazards from our highways which no decent person should have to face, I request those of our citizens who are interested in aiding this Commonwealth in the task of protecting its people to report to this office

EARHART MEMORIAL IS PLANNED AT AIRPORT

As a lasting tribute to Miss Amelia Earhart, first of her sex to span the Atlantic in flight, a "Memorial Administration Building" will be erected at the Boston airport.

Plans for the raising of a fund, to be known as the Earhart Foundation and which will provide for the new building and an adequate system of illumination at the field in East Boston, were discussed today by a special committee of prominent citizens meeting at the headquarters of the Crosscup-Fiskon Post, American Legion.

RITCHIE EXTOLS SMITH AS 5TH SESSION OPENS

Sam Houston Hall, Houston, June 28 (AP)—The fifth session of the Democratic national convention opened at 10:35 a. m. today (12:35 p. m., Boston time).

Chairman Joe T. Robinson presented the Rev. A. Frank Smith of the First Methodist Church of Houston, who pronounced the invocation.

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, his state's favorite son, who withdrew in favor of Alfred E. Smith, made the first speech of the day, seconding the nomination of the new worker for president.

Ritchie was given a fine ovation as he mounted the platform. Many of the delegates stood and cheered as two convention bands joined in "Maryland, My Maryland."

The candidate whose cause he espoused was described by Gov. Ritchie as a man possessing all of the qualities of a great president.

Plate decreed for Governor Smith

QUINCY BEAUTY ILLUSTRATES FOR BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN READERS PERILS OF BOATING POINTED OUT BY GERTRUDE EDERLE

The appalling toll of canoe fatalities every summer is due, in large measure, to carelessness, asserts Gertrude Ederle, famous swimmer, and the first woman to swim the English Channel. In the six photos shown here, which were posed especially for a Boston Evening American staff photographer by Gertrude Peterson of Quincy, by courtesy of the Merrymount Park Canoe House, the wrong and the right way to handle a canoe are shown. Miss Ederle stresses particularly the danger in taking chances. The careful canoeist will easily avoid accidents by keeping to the center of the canoe when boarding or leaving it, by not leaning over the side. If your canoe does overturn, remember that a canoe is virtually unsinkable, and cling on until help arrives. Above all, DON'T STAND UP IN A CANOE

DEMOCRATS AGREE UPON DRY ENFORCEMENT PLANK

On the other big controversial issue of this convention, farm relief, the platform drafters endorsed the requests of farm leaders for approval of the equalization fee principle by inference without mentioning the McNary-Haugen bill.

"We have given the farmers substantially what they asked for," said Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts.

"The farm plank as adopted by the sub-committee is highly satisfactory to the farm interests," declared A. D. Fairbairn, one of the leaders in the fight to put across the McNary-Haugen bill.

"Under the terms of this plank," he continued, "the matter becomes simply a charter from the Democratic party to Congress to enact legislation that will accomplish the purpose of the McNary-Haugen bill.

"As to the calling of an extra session of Congress we're waiting for some word from Governor Smith. We imagine we will hear from him on it soon after he is nominated."

In sharp contrast to the bitter fights which have rocked the Democrats in the past, the long meeting of the drafting committee of 14 members was peaceful and harmonious.

"It was the most pleasant and harmonious meeting of the kind I've ever attended," said Chairman Pittman. "They are the finest bunch of fellows I've ever sat down with. There were no fights, nor harsh words—we merely dealt throughout the night with language and phraseology."

He expressed himself as satisfied with the prohibition and farm planks.

"It is one of the best platforms I've ever seen," he added. "It is not half as long as the Republican platform adopted at Kansas City."

The prohibition plank was the last approved by the committee. All the outcast three different prohibition proposals were submitted:

1—Repeal of the 18th amendment and modification of the Volstead laws by the wets.

2—A bone dry plank, by Gov. Dan Moody of Texas.

3—A law enforcement plank, by the harmony seekers.

This last proposal had been agreed upon by the Smith forces in an effort to reach a compromise.

MOODY UNDECIDED

Governor Moody held out until the end for bone dry prohibition and even as the committee recessed in the early morning he had not fallen into line on the plank adopted, it was declared.

"I have not yet determined whether I will bring in a minority report," said Moody. "I must await developments."

Slowly, however, the other militant drys on the committee, such as Senators Glass of Virginia and Caraway of Arkansas, swung over to the law enforcement idea, and thus a slam-bang fight was avoided.

The wets made a gesture for the drinking plank, but did not press it hard.

Senator Wagner of New York, Governor Al Smith's spokesman on the committee, said the platform was satisfactory.

"I am satisfied with the whole platform," he stated. "Personally, I am a wet and I had such a plank when I voted for, but the one adopted does not go beyond law enforcement, so I am satisfied."

The preamble to the prohibition plank, on which there was no dissagreement, sharply criticizes the Republicans for not properly enforcing the eighteenth amendment and blames them for the breakdown of honest enforcement. It is understood to cite the limit on the powers of the President in regard to law enforcement.

Senator Walsh said the enforcement plank "was the best obtainable under the circumstances in view of the wide diversion of opinion among the members of the committee."

The corruption plank, described as "a burning attack" on the Republican party for the oil, election and other scandals of the past eight years, is one of the features of the platform.

A plank, proposed by Walsh, attacks big monopolies and trusts.

The only plank left open is that dealing with labor. Officials of labor organizations were called to meet with the committee before noon to present their views, after which the labor plank will be drafted.

Delegates Will Leave Texas for Home Tomorrow

Houston, Tex., June 28 (AP)—With the prohibition tangle straightening itself out in committee, the Democratic national convention neared its end today with scarcely a threat of trouble left on its horizon.

By early afternoon tomorrow, at the very latest, it was expected by the convention management to adjourn finally and go home, after having put before the country a ticket composed of Smith of New York and Robinson of Arkansas, and a platform promising, among other things, strict enforcement of the dry laws and a comprehensive program of farm relief.

N. E. Delegates Split on Choice for Vice-President.

Houston, June 28 (AP)—Inquiries among the New Englanders today revealed divergent individual views about vice-presidential candidates, but indicated that delegations would unite in support of the candidate whom party leaders designate as most likely to add strength to the ticket.

Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts and others have declared themselves for Senator Robinson; while some have expressed preference for Cordell Hull of Tennessee.

"Grover Cleveland said the whole art of government is simply applied common sense and common honesty, with reason, justice and tolerance, as hand maids.

"Governor Smith possesses all those qualities. He is living proof that American democracy can produce leaders simple and yet great.

"I believe that if every voter in the land could see him and hear him, and come under the spell of his personality, there would be few who would not vote for him. This will be no less true in the North and East and West, than in the South, where the spirit of democracy has never wavered and whose sons and daughters have never faltered in their allegiance to the Democratic party."

Today's session was a continuation of the long interlude of nominating speeches begun last night. It was the tentative plan to adopt the platform this afternoon, and to cast tonight the one ballot now considered certain to result in the nomination of Smith.

An overnight adjournment is expected before selection of Smith's running mate and the final windup.

Following Ritchie's speech for Smith, Senator James A. Reed was placed in nomination by Charles M. Howell of Kansas City.

In every case where the facts warrant his so doing, the registrar says he will take immediate and appropriate action.

He warns the citizens, however, that in making complaints fairness and impartiality be exercised with a willingness to accept responsibility so that justice may be done.

4 RESCUED IN SEA RECOVER

Rescued from drowning when the upset of their dory threw them into the waters off the mouth of the Saugus river, four residents of Point of Pines, Revere, are recovering today from the effects of shock and immersion.

The rescued are John Sinclair, Rice ave., his son, Douglas, and Leonard and Herbert Salter, young brothers, of Rice ave.

They were saved, as they clung to the overturned dory, by Capt. Ralph Goldie, of Point of Pines Yacht Club, and Morris Freedman, on the latter's speed-boat. Goldie and Freedman took them to the Nahant Coast Guard station.

Won't Let Richest Man in Balkans Be a Pauper

Vienna, June 28 (AP)—Count Michael Karolyi, one-time Premier of the republic of Hungary and before the war one of the richest men in the Balkans, has been denied an application to be allowed to plead as a pauper on the ground of inability to pay exorbitant legal fees.

The court refused the application with the statement that no pauper could live in such expensive cities as London, Paris and New York as Count Karolyi did.

(Count Karolyi arrived in Mexico City on June 9 and said he expected to remain in Mexico for several months studying conditions. He also planned to visit Central America, Cuba, Chili and Argentina to gather data for a book on Socialism.)

NEW GERMAN CABINET IS PROVISIONAL TILL FALL

Berlin, June 28 (INS)—Upon the anniversary of his signing the Versailles treaty, Chancellor-Designate Herman Mueller today notified President von Hindenburg that he was able to form only a provisional cabinet, which probably will have to be reorganized in the autumn.

Negotiations for a grand coalition cabinet were shattered when President von Hindenburg and Dr. Gustav Stresemann vetoed former Chancellor Wirth's candidacy for the vice-chancellorship.

PLAN EARHART MEMORIAL AT HUB AIR PORT

The legion post, co-operating with the Boston Chamber of Commerce and the Boston Chapter of the National Aeronautic Association, has undertaken the raising of the fund by public subscription. Governor Fuller is chairman of the honorary committee.

Both the administration building and the lighting system are sorely needed at the airport, and their respective erection and installation will be a long step in the promotion of the Boston field as the leading airport on the Atlantic coast.

Not only will Miss Earhart be honored in a manner which she herself might choose, but the memorial building, of great utility value, will be a tribute to all transoceanic fliers as well as those who gave their lives in the war, the Transcup-Plahon Post points out.

The active committee before whom the plans were laid today is headed by Robert F. Raymond, Jr., World War flier, and comprises the following members:

Robert F. Raymond, Jr., Will Brown, Paul H. Hines, Fred Toye, Frank Glynn, Theodore G. Holcombe, Travers D. Carman, Carroll J. Swann, Gabriel M. Stone, Chester A. Porter, James F. Fay, Brunelle G. Hawkins, Alfar D. Turner.

Earhart Girl Sails; Eager to Reach Home

Southampton, Eng., June 28—"I can hardly wait to get back to Boston," declared Miss Amelia Earhart, America's noted feminine flier, when she sailed for New York today on the liner President Roosevelt.

Miss Earhart was accompanied by the other members of the crew of the transatlantic plane Friendship—Pilot Wilmer Stultz and Mechanician Louis Gordon.

The American passengers already on the liner gave Miss Earhart a cordial reception when she went aboard.

"I have had a glorious time in England and hope to return as soon as possible, but America will look good to all of us," Miss Earhart told International News Service.

Capt. H. E. Bailey, European representative of the Friendship's flight, also is returning on the President Roosevelt. The whole party attended a farewell dinner at the Southwestern Hotel last night.

Before Miss Earhart sailed the wife of the American consul in Southampton presented her with a rubber doll representing a British Jack tar. At the same time Mechanic Gordon received a "bonzo pup" and Pilot Stultz was decorated with a red carnation.

Miss Earhart had little to say about her future plans. She was asked what she intended to do when she reached the United States and she answered: "My plans for the future are uncertain."

Hub Summer Won't Obey Forecast

Despite the fact that the weather bureau refuses to conduct itself according to program, the weather bureau goes calmly ahead with its daily predictions, today's being showers for tomorrow.

The forecast for Boston and vicinity: Partly cloudy tonight and Friday, probably with showers Friday afternoon or night; not much change in temperature; moderate west to southwest winds.

Normal temperatures were in evidence today, an official reading 77 at 1 o'clock being reported, as compared to 82 at the same hour yesterday. The humidity was also normal.

Showers have continue in the Missouri and Mississippi Valleys, eastern Gulf and South Atlantic States, and in the lower St. Lawrence Valley and Maine and New England.

BROOKLINE ROSE WEDDING ROMANTIC, SAYS BETTY ALDEN

Miss Barbara Stone Becomes Bride of John Peirce Chase

VERY DECIDEDLY IS THE ROMANTIC THEME RESOUNDING through June's closing hours. Quietly, sans ceremonial circumstances, some wedding knots are tied. Or to organ notes swelling toward ecclesiastical rafters girls and men each to the other "plight thee my troth." Two weddings of social import more than the ordinary occupied yesterday. At one Mrs. Alys Reigers Meyer became Mrs. Philip Owen Coffin, and the other gave to Miss Barbara Stone the Mayflower cognomen of Chase, she becoming Mrs. John Peirce Chase of that clan revered of New Englanders.

THE STONE-CHASE BRIDAL WAS A ROSE WEDDING. Quantities of the lovely Talisman rose, that for tint hovers nutly between soft pink and tangerine yellow, made a floral bower from church door to high altar. Clusters of the pretty things parted the pews. Urns piled high with a riot of Talismans stood at the altar. And bride attendants in tangerine frocks verging brightly on the pink blended perfectly into the Talisman background.

ODDLY ENOUGH, BUT EFFECTIVELY, THE TWINKLE OF lighted tapers was entirely absent from the picture. Not a single candle was in evidence. What soft light there was within the church came filtering through richly stained windows, the sun bringing something of bright Madonna blue and imperial purple to color the bridal aisle. There were but three bride attendants. Miss Eleanor Hoyt of New York and the Misses Mary and Ruth Chase, sisters of the bridegroom.

THE TALISMAN ROSE TINT IN CHIFFON FROCKS ON THE attendants set off three handsome girls. Their skirts ended in petal points and there was an interesting bow arrangement caught between the shoulders. Hats were drooping, and transparent, and quite in the vogue so predominatingly wedding attendant-ish.

THE BRIDE'S HEAVY WHITE SATIN SWUNG INTO A rippled hem line and had the long and graceful full court train tradition allots the bride, and which few brides abjure. Tulle trailled mistily over the satin length of it, and was bound to dark locks by a single strand of bride blossoms. Mrs. Galen Stone, mother of the bride, wore violet chiffon, and Mrs. Philip Putnam Chase, mother of the bridegroom, wore a chiffon and velvet creation of gentina blue. First Parish was filled with guests, who, after the ceremony, motored over to the Stone place in Boylston st. to offer felicitations.

BEAUTIFUL "ROCK MAPLE" WAS THE SCENE OF THE wedding of Mrs. Meyer Rodgers, daughter of Mrs. George von L. Meyer. Simplicity was its keynote, if so lovely a country setting and so pretentious a mansion as "Rock Maple" affords can in thus properly designated. The Meyer estate at Hamilton is a show place of show places. It is the ideal created when great wealth and exceptional taste combine. The manor house sits majestically on its plateau, overlooking acres of the rolling landscape Hamilton is famous for.

THE BRIDES WEDDING GOWN AND HER GOING-AWAY gown were one and the same. A chiffon creation in keeping with the informality of a home wedding. Mr. Coffin and his bride will live in Washington, where he has important business interests. Only the close family circle was bidden to the high noon ceremonial. George von L. Meyer is the bride's brother. A sister is the Donna Brambilla, and she is in this country now, having come over with Mrs. Meyer when that important matron came back from foreign parts.

'Bluebeard' Slayer of 5 Hunted in France

Marseilles, France, June 28 (AP)—A hue and cry has been raised throughout France for Jerome Prat, alias Camille Galliard, 61, an alleged Bluebeard charged with murdering at least five fiancees and probably many others.

Police investigation showed Prat operated along the same lines as the famous Henri-Desire Landru, getting in touch through matrimonial advertisements with women of more years than discretion who had a little capital.

Suspicion was aroused Sunday when Mlle. Elsie Face, owner of a villa Prat was known to have just purchased, was found strangled with a piece of wire. Prat had disappeared.

Police then searched another villa that Prat leased a year ago and found fragments of bodies of two women buried under the cement floor of a chicken house. The bodies were later identified as Jeanne Ebel and Jeanne Bonnet, both more than 40 years old.

Neighbors said that since Prat had come there five women had arrived at the villa and not one was ever seen to leave.

BUDLONG WINS DIVORCE FIGHT

Newport, June 28—A final decree of divorce from Mrs. Jessie Margaret Budlong was allowed entered in superior court today on behalf of Milton J. Budlong, millionaire society man.

Mrs. Budlong, who acted as her own attorney during the trial last year, was present in court and took immediate exception to the allowance. She said she would carry the case to the United States Supreme Court on a writ of error, not only as to the final decree, but as to custody of her two minor sons, whose care was awarded to their father.

WIFE SEEKING HYDE PARK MAN

Ill from worry, Mrs. Joseph E. Roth of Belnel rd., Hyde Park, asked the Boston Evening American today to aid in finding her husband, an engineer's clerk, who disappeared from his office Tuesday.

Roth had the family touring car, a small machine, on the day he vanished, but his wife believes he had little money.

The couple had made all preparations for their vacation, beginning July 7, and all the vacation clothing and outfit Roth had purchased remain at home, she said. His employers are also anxious to have him return, according to Mrs. Roth.

The missing man is 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighs 165 pounds, has dark hair, dark complexion and brown eyes and wore a dark gray suit, black shoes, white shirt with soft collar, black shoes and a gray soft hat.

HOME ROBBED, FAMILY AWAY

George Morcincvi and his family returned today from a trip to Canada to find that their home in Ten Hills rd., Somerville, had been entered and a safe containing jewelry valued at $494 had been carried away.

Sergt. Daniel M. O'Connell and Inspector Earl W. Elliott said entrance was effected through a rear side window, and the safe, weighing 300 pounds, was taken out through the rear door. Police believe the robbery was committed by someone familiar with the premises.

YOUTHS FOUND IN DOVE COTE ARE ARRESTED

Two young men who liked the breeze atop Lynn Rock were found sojourning in the dove cote of the Martin estate on Lawton ave., in the section, and arrested on charges of vagrancy and trespassing. At the station house, the youths, who gave their names as Robert Creighton and Leon Nute, said they were keeping out of the excessive heat and enjoyed the cool air circulating in and about the dove cote, which is quite an elaborate and sizable structure.

ILLINOIS BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY
208 WEST WASHINGTON STREET
CHICAGO

Apr 24, 1925

Mr. Fred R. Jenkins, Chairman
78 W Adams Street,
Chicago, Ill.

Dear Mr. Jenkins:

Our appreciation is extended for providing a place for us on the Text Book Committee, but it is not advisable for us to accept. Therefore, please accept this as my resignation.

There is no doubt that in time truth will prevail in text book material.

Very truly yours,

J. L. SPELLMAN

Mr. H. H. Aylesworth,
National Electric Light Assn.,
29 West 39th Street,
New York, N. Y.

Dear Mr. Aylesworth:

Relative to the Textbook Committee, as you know we had a meeting in Indianapolis with a full committee, with the exception of Mr. Dunn of Boston, who was represented by Mr. H. C. Morris.

As a result of that meeting I have had a conference with certain of the firm of Ginn & Company, one of the largest publishers of textbooks, and as a result they held a meeting with my associates early in May, and I think we will have it in Chicago on the 5th of May.

This morning I received the resignation of Mr. John L. Spellman representing the Telephone Interests, from which I should judge that they are rather restless about being late the matter, probably due to their special conditions.

To have had nothing so far but encouragement in handling the matter through the various committees, I am inclined to feel that our meeting with the representatives of the firm of Ginn & Company on the 5th will bring further consideration.

I have nothing to suggest relative to the telephone interests' resignation, although you may be interested in finding out the facts in the case. At the meeting Mr. Spellman was rather afraid of the situation as relating to his company. Personally I have no such fears, as I have found so far that the publishers are very much interested in getting the truth, and are representative business men.

I would be glad to get your slant on the situation.

Very truly yours,

Chairman

FR/IE

HERE is the record of the different attitudes of two utility men toward tampering with the text-books which help to equip millions of school children for citizenship. One meeting of the "Text-Book Committee" was enough for J. L. Spellman, of the Illinois Bell Telephone Company. He writes (above) that it is "not advisable" to be a member. "There is no doubt that in time truth will prevail in text-book material." Fred R. Jenkins, of the National Electric Light Association, reports (below) to its then managing director that "Mr. Spellman was rather afraid of the situation as relating to his company. Personally I have no such fears."

EDUCATOR HITS POWER TRUST

Chicago, June 28—Activity of the Power Trust in subsidizing professors and text book writers has become an insult to educators on a large scale."

This was the characterization made by Dr. John A. Lapp of Marquette University in his address to the American Federation of Teachers' convention at the Congress Hotel.

"Revelations of the insidious influence in high schools and colleges of the power trust, made by the Federal Trade Commission, constitute a sharp challenge to the integrity of the educators and the educational system itself," he said

He charged that activities of the trust in obtaining control of the schools included:

Subsidizing college professors and writers of text books which gave the utilities' view while appearing to be impartial and scientific.

Obtaining adoption of favorable text books by high schools and colleges.

Paying traveling expenses of professors to public utility conferences and distributing among them "personal and pecuniary" favors.

Establishing bureaus of utility research in universities under "high sounding scholastic names."

"Intimidating school men into silence by direct and indirect methods."

Furnishing speakers to high schools and colleges under the guise of "explaining public utility services."

AGED WOMAN IS FOUND IN DAZE

Clad in widow's black and wearing an old-fashioned bonnet, a little old lady was found wandering at Clarendon and Beacon sts., Back Bay, early today with recollection of her identity and home address gone.

She told police she believed, but was not sure, she was Bridget Gallagher, 63 years old.

Policeman John Edwards of the Back Bay station, who had noticed the woman for some time, took her to the Back Bay station, where questioning failed to recall her identity and home to mind.

From the police station she was taken to the Chadron St. Home, was fed and was put to bed.

Brockton, June 28—Branded as a persistent rum seller by the district attorney's office, Alfred Grenier of Pleasant st., Bridgewater, was given a sentence of four months and a fine of $500 by Judge Walter L. Collins in Superior Court here.

LONG EXPECTED TO CAST VOTE FOR SMITH

Houston, Tex., June 28—Members of Massachusetts' delegation to the Democratic national convention still are puzzled at the attitude of Richard H. Long toward Governor "Al" Smith's candidacy.

Though Long continues to decline to declare himself or comment in any way, many of the Bay State delegates believe that the Framingham man will swing into line for the New York Governor with the rest of his State. But Long is keeping mum on reports that he is considering casting his vote for Senator James A. Reed.

The complete collapse of the boom for Reed and practically every other rival of Smith makes it difficult to understand how Long can give expression to any anti-Smith feeling he may have. Despite his continued refusal to discuss the matter, the opinion of a majority of the Massachusetts delegation is that the vote for the State will be cast solidly for the New York Governor on the one and only ballot on the presidential nomination.

Anti-Klan Democrats here charge that Leonard Withington, former Boston man but for the past few years secretary of the Republican State committee of Texas, has made a bargain with the Klan forces in the hope of carrying Texas for Hoover.

HOWELL CALLS REED A 'HUMAN THUNDERBOLT'

Houston, Tex., June 28 (INS)—James A. Reed is a great American, with an outstanding record of public achievements and he would make a great American president, Charles M. Howell, of Missouri, declared today in placing Reed's name before the Democratic national convention as a candidate for the party's presidential nomination.

Against the advancing columns of a united Republican party, Howell said, "a human thunderbolt must be hurled and James A. Reed is that thunderbolt."

Reed is made to order as a candidate for the presidency against Herbert Hoover," Howell asserted. "With their records, their ideals and their accomplishments put down side by side, and their real abilities and their true worth judged in the open court of public opinion—that greatest court on this earth—what chance would Hoover have against the greatest orator of the English-speaking race?"

Howell diverted but once from a dramatic summarization of Reed's public life and then only to pledge the Missourian's service to the party this year whether he won or lost the presidential nomination.

"In offering our distinguished statesmen, we are not appealing to you because of state pride—that would be selfish," said Howell in opening his speech.

CREATED GREAT ISSUE

"We talk to you from a national standpoint because he stands for those fundamental principles upon which all Democrats can agree and which they have loved and fought for and are willing to fight for again and again, because he is at once the creator of the great burning issue of this day and the pitiless sword of its execution.

"We stand for the rights of property as well as for the rights of man, but when the rights of property conflict with the rights of man, we stand for the rights of man.

"Jefferson on the one side and Hamilton on the other created that issue and the Democratic party follows Jefferson. No statesman, living or dead, has held more firmly to this doctrine than has Sen. James A. Reed.

"We are in favor of free, local government and in the preservation of the sovereignty of states. We are in favor of extending the dominion of federal government to the limits of the Constitution and no farther—that is, we support the Constitution. Reed is in harmony with the Democratic doctrine in this respect."

ONE RAP AT HOOVER

In touching on Reed's career, Howell said the Missourian had made such a battle for "honest government and pure elections" that it would "stand as his everlasting monument.' He added that Reed had driven Newberry from public life and ended the sale of public offices in Michigan.

He said Reed had closed the doors of the Senate to Smith, of Illinois, and to Vare, of Pennsylvania. Vare, whose latest conspicuous achievement was to swing the Pennsylvania delegation to insure the nomination of Hoover.

"If Hoover should win in the coming election, would he fail to remember the man who helped him in his hour of need?"

There was one mention of President Woodrow Wilson. Howell declared Reed during the war "supported our great President in every request for money, materials and men." He told of Reed defeating the measure proposing a "war cabinet" and added that "Woodrow Wilson, heeded by the men and resources of the country, won the war and out of its wreck rose to world stature and in thought and ideals almost passed to world dominion."

NO FOREIGN ALLIANCE

On foreign affairs, Howell said Reed "stood where Washington stood—against all foreign entanglements and alliances." "He has insisted upon maintaining the dignity and honor of this republic wherever its flag floats, but he has stood against our involvement in the controversies of the old world or our participation in agreements which compel us to send American boys to fill foreign graves."

There was another sentence that provoked applause—it came when Howell said: "There lives no greater defender of the Constitution."

On prohibition, Howell said Reed "believes that if any laws prove oppressive or unwise, the people, through their chosen representatives, have the right and power to change or modify them, but that until so changed or modified, they should be respected, obeyed and strictly enforced."

REED WILL GO ON STUMP FOR AL SMITH

WM. K. HUTCHINSON
I. N. S. Correspondent

Houston, Tex., June 28—Senator James A. Reed, the fighting warrior from Missouri, is not and will not be a candidate for the Democratic vice-presidential nomination, but will pledge himself during the convention here to take the stump to give his native support to Gov Al Smith of New York.

Reed will contest Smith's nomination until the New York Governor actually has been nominated. In the meantime, he probably will be invited to address the convention and then will take the opportunity publicly to pledge himself to whatever candidate is chosen to carry the Democratic standard in the presidential campaign next November. He probably will speak tonight after the platform is adopted.

Reed's decision to avoid entering the vice-presidential race if and when he is defeated for the presidential nomination virtually increases the chances for the nomination of Senator Joe. T. Robinson of Arkansas for second place.

Informal overtures already have been made inviting Reed to address the convention in person before it adjourns. The idea originated with the Illinois delegation and was said to have been fathered by George E. Brennan, Democratic czar in the "Prairie" State. It met with immediate endorsement of the dmith leaders.

Jimmy Walker Booms Texas as Fall Capitol

By ROLAND KREBS
International News Staff Correspondent

Houston, June 28—"Think," said Mayor "Jimmy" Walker today as he looked over Houston from his fifteenth story Rice hotel window, "is a swell spot.

"Do you know I've got to like Houston and the South so much since I've been here that I'm going to suggest to Gov. Smith as soon as he's elected that he have a fall White House down this way. Just as the presidents lately have had summer White Houses.

"That would be a swart stunt, is you ask me. It would be good for Al, good for the South and good for the whole country.

"It would be good for Al because it would give him a sniff of good climate—not that there's anything wrong with our own climate or Washington's—and get him away for a while from a lot of fellows who are always cluttering up Washington and taking up the President's time.

"It's one of the left-handed breaks a man gets when he's President—being nailed to a chair in Washington. Why pick a fellow for the biggest job we have and then make a prisoner of him for four years as a reward? No wonder Coolidge didn't want to be drafted. He meant he didn't want to be sentenced.

"They tell me that this city in autumn is delightful. It's a little warm here in mid-summer, but it's not so bad. Why, I've worn my vest and coat every day.

"I'll tell you why I think it could be a good thing for the South," he resumed, "to have the President down here, say in September and October before Congress convenes.

"Al knows more about the South and its problems than a great part of the South suspects.

"The South ought to know Al more in a personal way and not only by his records and achievements. That's what I like about the South—it's clubby. Intimate. I think it ought to be real clubby with its President.

"These current places like Texas and California hardly ever get a squint at the President, except through the newsreels. They think from seeing only these pictures that he's a fellow who spends most of his time laying cornerstones and shaking hands with folks on the White House lawn and who is picked on by the cartoonists.

"We've had lots of Republican Presidents and the South probably wasn't anxious to get chummy, because it felt it had no staunch friend in the White House then. Now, when we're going to have a Democrat, a friend of the South, say 'let's get together.'

"All the North and East ought to know that the new South, with its industries and its tremendous exports and its wonderful water transportation developments, is not the old South recovering from reconstruction blunders—the old South that most northerners pictured as a sleepy place that lifted its nose out of a mint julep once in a while long enough to cuss the Yankees.

"The big boys in Washington ought to keep their fingers on the pulse of a place growing as fast as the South is. You can't keep your finger on anybody's pulse when you're standing in the next room."

Divide White House, 'Bugs' Baer Urges

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER
Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service, Inc.

Houston, June 28—Talking with Tex Rickard, Tex Trumbull and Tex Nathan Burkan last night when Tex Swinnerton and Tex Ginsberg came along.

Tex Ginsberg objected to the last line of Tex Bowers' keyhole speech, "To thy tents, oh Israel."

Tex Rickard wanted to know what was the matter with "To thy tents, O, Israel."

Tex Ginsberg said, "Why, everybody knows the tent business is bad."

Tex Bowers' keyhole speech was a gumbush of associated hyperbole that flowed along just as smoothly as the Missouri river and just as muddy.

We preferred Senator Moses' keyhole speech in Kansas City.

That speech was the climax to the one on the Mount. Once again Moses smote the rock and apple sauce gushed forth.

We have the answer to this convention business. Abbreviate all this hamburgerdy nonsense and turn the White House into a duplex apartment. Tex Hoover could occupy half and Tex Smith the other half.

The friends of Tex Smith, with their soggy hip pockets, could call around on Al through the back door.

And we will bet that you would find all of Tex Hoover's pals in the back of the house.

There is plenty of delayed chatter about Tex Jefferson and Tex Jackson, two boys who managed to get elected without the aid of bodyguards.

We asked Tex Ginsberg how Will Bill Lyons of Colorado got the new title of Tex Lyons. Tex Ginsberg replied. "Well, when trouble starts he Tex it on the run."

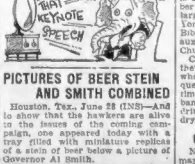
Looks like Tex Robinson of Arkansas will get the Vice-Presidential plaster. He has already bought a Texas cowboy hat.

The hat clerk asked Tex Robinson: "What size?"

Tex answered: "Eight laps to the mile."

When Tex Smith is in the White House ice will meet you in the cellar.

Tex Smith has no objections to Tex Robinson as Vice-President, provided that Tex Robinson brings his own.



PICTURES OF BEER STEIN AND SMITH COMBINED

Houston, Tex., June 28 (INS)—And to show that the hawkers are alive to the issues of the coming campaign, one appeared today with a tray filled with miniature replicas of a stein of beer below a picture of Governor Al Smith.

WOMAN CHURCH LEADER 'DRY' WORKER FOR SMITH

Houston, Texas, June 28—Miss Annie Mathews, delegate to the Democratic convention from New York, is talking for Al Smith, working for Al Smith and, if necessary, will fight for him. Miss Mathews is a Baptist. She is an active member in good standing of one of the large Baptist congregations in New York city, and frequently addresses Bible classes as well as various auxiliaries social of the Baptist Church.

Concerning prohibition, Miss Mathews says: "If all of the people who voted prohibition lived dry, the question would be settled for all time and the bootleggers would be bankrupt. Personally I do not drink. My friends call me a 'living dry'."

WAR ROMANCE BRIDE ENDS IN DIVORCE

A shattered international war romance was buried in the graveyard of vanished hopes and illusions when Mrs. Alma Georgette Murphy of Waltham was granted a decree nisi from James D. Murphy in Middlesex Probate Court.

The suit was uncontested. Murphy at present being an inmate of the House of Correction, where he is serving a three months' sentence for assault and battery on his wife.

Mrs. Murphy, who speaks little English, charged cruelty, intoxication and neglect, and was granted alimony of $15 a week.

Through her counsel, Atty. John T. Foster, she told Judge Leggat she was born in Etaples, France, and met Murphy in 1919 when he was a doughboy overseas.

The witness said Murphy wooed her with tales of the wonderful life she would have in America as his wife, and they were married. They came to this country in 1921, and, according to Mrs. Murphy's testimony, the vow soon disillusioned.

She charged that her husband blashed her with a razor, and that on one occasion he beat her so severely it was necessary for a physician to put her in a plaster cast.

THEA UNHURT IN PLANE CRASH

Cap de la Madeleine, Que., June 28 (AP)—Miss Thea Rasche, German girl flier who hopes to make a non-stop flight to Berlin, and her crew escaped uninjured when her monoplane North Star crashed through some bushes in an attempted take off for a test flight today.

Ulrie Koenemann, pilot and mechanic Zebora were in the plane with Miss Rasche. The latter was at the controls. The ship was not seriously damaged.

Owing to the softness of the field the plane refused to leave the ground and taxied to the end of the field where it ploughed through some bushes.

'Honey Fitz' Missed, Curley 'Rapped' on Singing

"Tammany" has not been played by the convention band. When one of the three bands in the convention hall started "Sweet Adeline," it hit upon a popular selection and proved that its singing is not always confined to the bibulous. One man said: "What's the use of playing that? Johnny Fitz isn't here and ex-Mayor Curley doesn't sing."

NO LEGS, DRIVES WHILE DRUNK

Harry Clark of Summer st., Weston, who has two artificial legs but is able, nevertheless, to drive an automobile and has a license to do so, pleaded guilty today in Waltham court to operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor.

He was fined $75 and two charges of drunkenness, to which he also plead guilty, were placed on file.

Clark, who is a gate-tender, having lost his legs in a railroad accident, was arrested on June 19, after his car collided with another. He was released on bail, but the next day was arrested for drunkenness. His surety then surrendered him and he was forced to remain in a cell until arraigned today.

Governor's Lady Is Quiet to Rosy O'Grady's Din

By WM. S. NEAL
I. N. S. Correspondent.

Houston, June 28—They all cheered—all but Mrs. Alfred E. Smith and her children.

The rafters of Convention Hall shook under the tumult which followed Franklin Roosevelt's nomination of the New Yorker to head the Democratic presidential ticket.

Dazzling lights of photographers played over the vast arena as men and women mounted chairs to flaunt their colors. Richly gowned women in the boxes near the Governor's party rose as one—but not the Governor's lady.

THEN LID BLOWS.

The face of Mrs. George Glynn, the candidate's sister, was wreathed in smiles. Two younger children—Alfred, Jr., and his sister, Katherine—peered into the far distant corners of the arena, their faces lighted with curiosity and eagerness.

It was the first great moment of the convention for the Smith family. They met it in silence.

And then—the parade started. Thousands—perhaps foes as well as friends—joined in the tumultuous procession, infected with the thought that a Presidency was in the making.

The parade's turning point carried it directly before the box of the Governor's lady. She was recognized. Colors were dipped.

And then she, and her family as well, relaxed from the tension. She smiled.

THEN SHE MELTS

A delegate shouted "We're proud of Al" and she waved a handkerchief.

A Wisconsin delegate brandished a drawing of the White House and the sign, "Al's next home." She laughed outright.

A poorly clad woman tiptoed to shake her hand. She responded with a hearty handclasp. The entire family melted under the acclaim and joined in the spirit of the occasion.

The tumult ceased, the crowd thinned. Quickly Mrs. Smith settled back and resumed her stoic mien.

Clad in a purple dress, with a diamond studded pin and ring flashing, she sat silently through other speeches.

Al's Heart in Texas, He Tells Wife Over Phone

Houston, June 28—"My heart's tonight in Texas, down on the Rio Grande."

This song greeted Mrs. Al Smith when she picked up the telephone receiver to answer a call from Governor Smith at the executive mansion at Albany.

Every day since Mrs. Smith has been at Houston she has received a telephone call from the Governor.

CLERGYMAN IS AGAINST PUBLIC RULE OF 'L'

For the first time since the discussions started before the Legislature on the future disposition of the Boston Elevated the views of a clergyman were today added before the House and Senate members.

In an open letter to the members the Rev. F. H. Hasson, Congregational minister of Mattapan, comes out in opposition to public ownership.

"Of the 750 electric railways in the United States the letter states, in part, "only 20 are publicly owned systems and of that number only three are in large cities—San Francisco, Seattle and Detroit."

The Rev. Mr Hasson contends that in each of the three cases the "public-ownership cure-all has been worse than the ailment

"It is common knowledge that the owners of the Boston Elevated system are ready and anxious to take it over," he continued. "The system was never in better condition. A careful analysis of the extensive studies of the Boston Elevated situation by experienced men is cumulative evidence of the advisability of continuing for a reasonable period the public control act.

"Boston has never expressed any desire for public ownership and if Massachusetts legislators want to try the experiment would it not be well to 'ask the city that owns one?'"

SAYS COWAN'S WIFE WANTED TO 'QUIT' HIM

Mrs. Ethel G. Cowan, Cambridge choir singer, expressed a wish to "get rid of" her husband, John W. Cowan, church worker, according to testimony today in Middlesex Probate Court.

The choir singer is attempting, in that court, to secure divorce from Cowan who, opposing the suit, names Fred O. Robinson, 67, wealthy Cambridge church deacon, as the "other man."

Mrs. Mary Campbell, who said that for six months of 1926 she ran a lodging house for Mrs. Cowan in Cambridge, testified that Mrs. Cowan said she wanted to be rid of her husband because he could not make enough money.

With Robinson, the wife said, according to Mrs. Campbell, she could have everything.

Witness said Mrs. Cowan admitted Cowan was a good husband and father and that his only fault was his inability to increase his income to where it met her desires.

Miss Bertha Frasier, 18, of Pleasant pl., Cambridge, testified that she acted as nursemaid to the three Cowan children in 1926 at Five Islands, Me., but that Cowan was there only one day to her knowledge.

Mrs. Cowan and Robinson were there constantly, however, the girl said, and she saw them hugging and kissing frequently. Sometimes they were seated on a couch.

The girl testified that Mrs. Cowan addressed the deacon as "Snookey," and that Robinson called Mrs. Cowan "Dear" and "Dixie."

BATTERS SISTER WITH AXE; KILLS HIMSELF

Bellingham, June 28 — Finishing breakfast today, Gilbert Drake, 60-year-old farmer, took an axe from the woodshed of his home here, beat in the skull of his 56-year-old sister, Miss Mabel Drake, a school teacher, and then committed suicide by cutting his own throat.

The battered, bleeding woman was still alive when police arrived and she was rushed to the Milford Hospital, where physicians held but scant hope of survival.

Drake's body, a gaping wound in the throat and a blood-stained razor beside it, was found in the cellar of the barn, where he had gone to take his own life.

Brother and sister had resided for many years in the old Drake homestead on Hartford ave., where the tragedy occurred. Miss Drake, besides teaching in the local schools, kept house for her brother. Police believe he became suddenly insane.

SEN. CURTIS REACHES R. I. TONIGHT FOR VISIT

Providence, June 28—Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas, Republican vice-presidential nominee, will arrive here tonight en route to his daughter's farm at Quidnisset, where he will spend two weeks. His daughter, Mrs. Webster Knight, 2d, will meet him at the train and drive him to Greyholme Farm in the Fawtuxet Valley. Before returning he expects to cruise for a few days on the yacht of Ex Prescott Knight.

American Movies Make Missionary Work Hard

Toronto, June 28 (AP)—American motion pictures rather than the newspaper or the missionary are providing China and the Orient with their greatest impression of Western civilization, Dr Charles W. Gilkey, of Chicago, told the annual meeting of the Baptist World Alliance.

China and India, he said, try to square the sermon on the mount with gunboats, grasping western business men and race prejudice. These factors as portrayed in movies, he said, greatly militate against the efforts of western missionaries.

The Baptist Young People's Union of the World, which has voted to disorganize, has elected representatives to the alliance and is now merged in the alliance.

3 IN CHELSEA, REVERE BITTEN

Three men were bitten by dogs today in Revere and Chelsea, one of the trio almost losing his thumb.

The new reports brought the total of Revere victims to 25 in three months and of Chelsea victims to 10 in three weeks.

Michael Milano of Revere st., Revere, was walking near his home when a collie snapped at his hand, nearly severing Milano's left thumb. It may have to be amputated.

At about the same time, Edward Domenichello of Inglewood ave., Chelsea, was walking in Inglewood ave. when a bulldog bit him on the left hip and left arm.

Owners of the dogs will be called to headquarters by the police.

PORTLAND, ME., MAN MUST SERVE TERM

Portland, Me., June 28—A fine of $5000 and a term of 18 months in Atlanta Federal penitentiary, which was imposed upon Joseph Dubie by Judge John A. Peters in United States District Court, here last September, has been affirmed by the United States Court of Appeals.

Dubie who has been at liberty on $10,000 bail, will be arrested and sent to Atlanta to serve his term of imprisonment.

Dubie was indicted by a grand jury on liquor charges.

The SKY seemed the limit

"Especially after that last raise: Why the devil are they promoting Benson now—instead of me?"

The pity of it is that so many men just lack drive enough to make the grade . . . Often they never realize the reason—that intestinal poisons sap energy—destroy initiative! Or perhaps they try ordinary laxatives: health foods that take weeks to act—cathartics that wrack the system . . .

Feen-a-mint is different!

It's just like a bit of delicious chewing gum. You don't swallow it—you chew it!

Its magic laxative principle is released slowly, the way science meant it to be released. It actually becomes part of the digestive fluids—does not disturb digestion. It works with the body—not against it

It won't torture you with griping pains. It won't poison or weaken the system. It won't enslave you to laxative pills. Get Feen-a-mint at your druggist's. Correct constipation—now!

'AL' WALTZES TO TUNE FROM CONVENTION

Albany, N. Y., June 28—Governor Al Smith heard, if he could not see, the demonstration at Houston when his name was placed in nomination for party standard bearer at the Democratic National Convention. And his foremost thought seemed to be of the "First Lady" of the Empire State.

"They are crowding around Mrs. Smith's box," came from the big radio set up in the executive mansion, where the Governor got his first-hand description of the convention.

"Crowding around Mrs. Smith's Box," he repeated to his daughter Emily, now Mrs. John A. Warner, wife of the superintendent of state police. There was a boyish grin upon his face.

Suddenly for the first time in the riotous demonstration the sound of a band came through the ether blaring forth the old familiar tune, "The Sidewalks of New York." It was being played at that moment in slow waltz tempo.

With another and broader grin, the Governor swung into a typical Bowery waltz step, ending with a slow side kick which would have won the approval of any Broadway dancer.

Then in a moment he was serious again. Now he was leaning close over the radio, as he remarked softly to his daughter:

"If we only had television now, we could see your mother standing right up in the box there," he remarked softly to his daughter.

Edwards Called Home

Houston, June 28 (AP)—Senator Edwards of New Jersey, representative of that state on the Democratic convention's resolutions committee, was called home today upon receipt of a telegram that Mrs. Edwards, who is ill, had suddenly taken a turn for the worse. Her condition was represented here as being grave.

BACKING SMITH AT HOUSTON

SMITH LEADERS ANXIOUS FOR BALLOTING

Houston, June 28—With Governor Al Smith's nomination for the Presidency formally placed before the Democratic national convention, his managers sat back today and waited rather impatiently for the balloting to start.

Convinced that the New York governor will go over with a rush on the first roll call, the Smith leaders are in a state of happy hysteria. For months they have felt certain that the man from the sidestreets of New York would be nominated but not even the bravest of the Tammany praters ever dreamed until recently that their idol could be nominated on the first ballot.

All talk of a bitter fight on the floor of the convention over prohibition was discounted by George E. Van Namee, convention manager for Governor Smith.

"With Governor Smith as its standard bearer, the Democratic party will be returned to power in the nation and no Democrat will do anything to jeopardize such an opportunity," Van Namee declared. "I am confident that the platform recommended by the resolutions committee will be adopted with little or no opposition."

After Franklin D. Roosevelt had placed Governor Smith in nomination the demonstration lasted less than half an hour, but it was just what the Tammany Hall leaders had hoped for.

Remembering the bedlam which followed the speech of Roosevelt at Madison Square Garden, four years ago, when he placed Smith in nomination, Tammany leaders had quietly passed the word along to the 500 braves in Sam Houston hall that this demonstration must be more dignified, in keeping with the new spirit of Tammany.

The Smith leaders even went so far as to request the braves not to take any noise-making devices into the hall.

There also was a general understanding that New York was not to take any part in the Smith parade until after it had gotten a good start. Consequently it was not until after many states had started the stampede for Smith that Big Jim Farley, head of the New York State Boxing Commission, grabbed the New York standard and leaped into the parade.

'OTHER WOMAN' NAMED IN SUIT BY MRS. BARR

New York, June 28—A suit to restrain Mrs. Margaret C. Dana from association with James C. Barr has been filed in supreme court here by Mrs. Lalla M. Barr, who seeks to have Mrs. Dana enjoined from having any relations with her husband.

Mrs. Barr is suing Barr for a separation in the New Hampshire courts.

The complaint, which is one of the most unusual ever filede here, asserts that since July, 1926, Mrs. Dana has been "calculating" to win Barr's affection from his wife, and that as a result of her "domineering influence" she has succeeded.

Mrs. Barr, who now lives at the Hotel Gladstone, 114 East Fifty-Second st., alleges that she has been injured by the acts of Mrs. Dana, particularly because of notoriety and publicity that has resulted from the association of Barr and Mrs. Dana.

Mrs. Dana lived until recently at the New Weston Hotel, but it was said that she had moved. Barr could not be found tonight at the University Club, where he lives, and Mrs. Barr was also out of the city.

Publicity for Mrs. Barr began in March, 1927, when Mrs. Barr reported to the police from her apartment in the Ritz Tower that her husband had disappeared. It was soon learned that he had been merely detained at his club. Later Mrs. Barr said that warning messages had come over the telephone, which were alleged to have taken the form of this threat:

"If you say anything about Mrs. Margaret Dana, I'll kill you."

No More Oily Skin and Ugly Enlarged Pores

Until now, face powders have been made exclusively for dry skin. To make them stay on the dry skins even the imported powders contain zinc stearate, which is harmful to the oily skins. It is dangerously laxadentic (skin-relaxing), the reverse of astringent. That's why ordinary face powders should never be put on oily faces. While oily skin needs an astringent to close the pores, ordinary powders relax oily skin and open the pores. And too many powders contain rice starch. The starch mixes with the oil in the pores and quickly ferments, encouraging enlarged pores, blackheads and eruptions. No wonder millions of women have joyfully welcomed a special face powder good for oily skin. Now, every time you powder, you give your complexion a real beauty treatment—you restore ugly, oily, coarse skin to perfect health—fine in texture, fresh, clear and lovely.

And, this is how this oily skin powder was created: For a long time beauty specialists have known a successful treatment for oily skins—a wonderful astringent for beautifying the skin and neutralizing the excess oil in the pores. A famous cosmetician got the marvelous idea of blending this beautifying astringent with a face powder. Then, by replacing the skin-relaxing zinc stearates and the harmful rice starch, found in other powders, with this marvelous astringent, he created La-May Face Powder.

So, if your skin is oily, let La-May restore it to normal. Or, if you find coarse pores on your cheeks, chin and nose, let La-May refine your skin to beauty. The more you use it the quicker you improve your appearance. When you try La-May you will say you have at last found your perfect face powder; that it goes on smoother, looks better and stays on longer than any other. The color for brunettes gives an unusually beautiful effect.

La-May (Poudre L'Ame) is in all shades at fifty cents and one dollar. If you do not find it does more to beautify your skin than any other, your money will be refunded. Show this guarantee to your druggist. Save this notice.

"It has done wonders for my skin!"

—healing, refining, beautifying

DOCTORS first prescribed this healing cream for chapped skin, burns, eczema and other skin troubles.

Nurses were the first to realize its amazing benefit when used as a toilet cream. They used it as a foundation for powder and found it protected and softened their skin. They massaged it in at night and found that it closed the pores, stimulated the skin, cleared away all roughness, every tiny blemish—and made their complexion satin-fine, healthy and more beautiful than they ever dreamed possible.

"It has done wonders for my skin" is the report you will hear from every user of Noxzema Skin Cream —and there are over a million women today using it as their exclusive beauty cream!

If you want a clearer, softer, lovelier complexion, just try a small jar of Noxzema for ten days, and then see the difference in the texture and beauty of your skin. Every drug and department store in the city sells and recommends Noxzema. Stop in today and ask for a small jar.

By RUTH BIDENOUR,
International News Correspondent.

Houston, Tex., June 28—I have always admired men. When there is conflict I yield to their judgment. They run the world—business, politics, books, governments, even most of the homes. When a woman butted in I used to feel she should be apologetic about it. Women, I thought, were the dumber sex.

They may be dumb, but I've never seen a bunch of women make such fools of themselves as the men who attend political conventions manage to do.

I don't know a thing about politics, but I think I know a man when I see one. None have appeared on this spectator's horizon at the convention—among legitimate politicians. Jimmy Walker is a good little egg and so are a few others, but their business degrades them.

When a man gets up and yells and waves his arms for no good reason other than that the head of his delegation has so prompted him, that should be grounds for divorce.

When he gets so agitated that he parades he needs a doctor. And when cheering no longer satisfied him and he resorts to fists that is ground for murder.

Politics! That word has dignity. It is taught as a science to youngsters in school. Dead exponents of the art are heroes and their pictures are hung in the capitols.

Did Washington and Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln and the rest make monkeys of themselves and their supporters as our contemporaries do?

The Republican convention in Kansis City was my initiation into politics. I was impressed with the idea and made an attempt to be duly spectful to the spectacle. In spite of my hosts, it seemed fantastically silly.

In Kansas City there was a show of vacuous dignity.

Here it is too hot, I suppose, for any such camouflage.

LIKES ROYALTY BETTER

This spectacle is loathsome, men screaming their heads off. It isn't a convention in the constitutional meaning of the term. It's a congregation of the insane.

The more I see of the hysterical business of selecting a candidate, the more strongly I favor royalty. They raise a little jolly hell when the successor to the king is born, but it's done frankly in the holiday spirit. There is no empty hokum about bow, form, rules, procedure, committees, platform, blah.

If politicians would be honest about it, all wouldn't be quite so revolting. Of course, grown men, fat and white haired many of them, behaving like college boys on a binge are not impressive. They were amusing at first, but the sense of humor of any ordinary observer is a fleeting thing and when one ceases to laugh at a novel horror one can only shudder.

If I were Al Smith and received command of the ship of state, I'd refuse to ride on the scummy sea which shoved the bark my way.

WOMEN CLING BRAVELY TO TRADITION BY HAVING LAST WORD!

MATCH MEN IN PRAISE FOR 'AL'

By MARTHA DALRYMPLE
Associated Press Writer

Houston, June 28 (AP)—The lull in feminine oratory that marked the opening sessions of the Democratic convention has been followed by the proverbial storm, women walking away with the honors in seconding the nomination of Governor Smith.

Three of the gayly-clad sex broke loose the floodgates during the second evening session Nellie Taylor Ross, one-time Governor of Wyoming, was the first woman to appear before the speakers' table and microphones.

Her strong voice, amplified many times by the machines in front of her, was heard to the very last row of the hall, but the appearance she made had to be relayed back by word of mouth.

WOMEN GET LAST WORD.

In a white lace sleeveless frock she presented the perfect picture of proper summer costume. A large pink mallow hat that swooped becomingly over his eyes shaded her from the glare of the photographer's lights, much to the picture makers' disgust and to her delight.

Her eulogies of the New York governor were cut short by the shouts from the floor of "time's up." With a gracious bow to Chairman Robinson she relinquished her place and returned to her seat.

Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, resplendent in black lace evening dress under which gleamed a pink satin slip, launched into her subject, Smith's nomination, in a business-like manner.

Her draped shoulders waved an accompaniment to her forceful words and the black lace floated about her arms in strange contrast to the deep voice that was booming over the hall.

PLENTY OF LACE WORN

Mrs. Stella Hamlin, newly elected national committeewoman from Louisiana, upheld the honor of her sex and gave the women the last word. Her second to Smith's nomination concluded the evening's performance and she retired from the platform amid congratulations that caused no small part of relief that the long session was at an end.

Interest was centered in Mrs. Hamlin's first public appearance, in view of the fact that she is considered a possible successor to Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, retiring committeewoman from Missouri, as vice-chairman of the national committee.

She wore a coffee-colored lace gown and a small tan braid hat of the cloche variety.

Lace seemed to be the keynote of the evening's fashions, for everywhere curious eyes turned to see the gowns of the famous they saw lace in some shape or form.

MRS. WILSON'S HAT

Mrs. Smith, whose self-imposed seclusion in Houston was shattered when hundreds of yelling and shouting Smith supporters besieged her box after the nominating speech, wore an all-over blue lace dress with a large straw hat to match.

Mrs. Wilson, who graciously relinquished the spotlight for the evening to the wife of the leading Presidential candidate, also appeared in lace, a gown of black chiffon inset with heavy lace.

Her hat, an enormous one of cerise velvet with the crown's edge heavily laden with matching roses, was the talkmark of the platform. By her hat she was known.

Mrs. Blair relinquished her seat on the platform to sit with Mrs. Frances P. Keyes, wife of the Senator from New Hampshire. When asked about the possibilities of the successor to her position as vice-chairman of the national committee, she said she had no idea of where the honor would go.

"It really ought to be a motherly type, don't you think?" she added, laughingly. "But it is pretty hard to find just the type with great ability. The new vice-chairman depends entirely upon the part of the country selected to produce the new chairman."

Great thrills were shivered from the New Jersey delegation when Miss Sally Hunter, a guest of the delegation, hoisted high as she was 73 years old and was attending her first political convention.

"It's great, just great. I never thought it would be like this," she said.

SHE MAY BE THE NEXT V. P.

NELLIE T. ROSS

She was governor of Wyoming, succeeding her husband, and seconded the nomination of Governor Smith. She can talk—on the platform.

SMITH FACES ONLY 'SET-UPS,' SAYS RUNYON

By DAMON RUNYON
Houston, Tex., June 28—Al's just about half nominated.

The Democracy of this great nation got so tangled up in eulogies of the Manhattan Islander after his name had been presented to the convention by Franklin D. Roosevelt that they couldn't complete the formality of making him their official nominee.

They had to take time out for one of those demonstrations in which the delegates marched around until their blood pressure was 'way up, their feet sore and their voices very hoarse.

Also there was some flat-tooling I spote, a resumption of the hostilities of the day session when some of the Southern delegates seemed to get a bit excited about Al's religion.

FACES ONLY "SET-UPS"

Up to the hour of adjournment Senator Walter George, Evans Woollens of Indiana, Congressman William A. Ayres of Kansas and Al Smith had been placed in nomination, which makes it look as if Al is in danger of being cited before some boxing commission for meeting set-ups.

If the Governor of New York was listening in at Albany on the chatter in the meeting house here, his ears must have ached by the time some of his admirers got through telling what a great guy he is.

The eulogies began before the nominations were completed; at least it's rumored that some more citizens are to be named today, including Jim Reed of Missouri, Gilbert M. Hitchcock of Nebraska and Cordell Hull of Tennessee. Put them all together they spell Albert.

The Smith demonstration was started by the New Yorkers, with none other than James A. Farley, chairman of the New York State boxing commission, packing the banner, and perspiring profusely, and doing some excellent foot work along the aisles.

Mayor James J. Walker, mayor of New York, took a short walk "mid the howling dervishes," then retired to his seat along with a lot of other New Yorkers, and looked on. That was the safest spot, especially when some Mississippians got to heaving up and down over so slight a matter as the carrying of the state standard in the Smith parade.

CAN'T GET THE AIR.

There was more delay getting the night session launched. It came out that this delay was due to the radioers.

"We can't get the air," explained Senator Robinson to an inquiring newspaperman who timidly ventured the suggestion that they eventually would get plenty of air if they keep consulting the conference of the radioers without reference to the papers.

During the wait the bands blasted away lustily. Finally, Senator Robinson banged for order with the seats only half filled, and the Rev. G. T. Walsh of Houston delivered an almost startling short prayer. Perhaps the reverend gentleman felt the time for praying had passed, and they ought to get down to action.

Says Religious Issue Is Met With Tolerance

By MRS. MARY T. NORTON,
Member of Congress from New Jersey
(Written Exclusively for The A. E. S.)

Houston, June 28—The spirit of religious freedom is dominant in the minds and hearts of the delegates to the Democratic national convention.

And since these delegates are representative of the thought of the nation, the great demonstration on the floor of the convention on this issue is convincing evidence that the people will cling to this constitutional guarantee.

When Senator Robinson of Arkansas mentioned the constitutional provision that religious belief should not be a qualification for office a great cheer rose from an overwhelming number of the delegates. That there were some who abstained did not lessen the tremendous effect of this demonstration.

I was especially happy to see so many Southern states' banners go into the air, proclaiming their adherence to this principle. While there is a religious issue, the great majority of people are tolerant and it will not prevent party harmony.

One of the most interesting phases of the convention to me, an Easterner, is the manner in which the people of Houston have opened their hearts and homes.

Among the many subjects to be considered by the party are the proposals of the American Legion. Especially do I want to see the convention record itself in favor of a sane and adequate preparedness against war and insurance of safety if war should come. I also hope to see a declaration of liberal treatment for ex-service men and, with proper safeguards, a commitment along the lines of universal conscription proposal of the legion.

ESCAPED PRISONERS CAUGHT WALKING TRACK

Comstock, N. Y., June 28 (AP)—Recognized by a Pottersville man who saw them walking railroad tracks near the Glen, two inmates of Great Meadow Prison, who escaped from a road construction gang near Pottersville, were recaptured. The prisoners, Frank Gowaski, 27, and Jesse Taby, 33, were lodged in Warren County Jail at Lake George and will be returned here.

N. Y. Delegates Keep 'Dignity on Straight'

Houston, Tex., June 28 (AP)—Governor Smith's New York delegation kept its dignity on straight all the way through the turbulent demonstration following the placing of its candidate's name before the Democratic convention. The policy of poise at any cost stood up under a severe strain.

With a fight in front of them, a scuffle behind them, and surging crowds yelling praises of "Al Smith," on both sides, most of the 94 delegates remained in their places, some sitting some standing, while the demonstration went on.

Leaders of the movement for the nomination of the New York governor announced before the convention opened that they had come to Houston to get votes for Smith, not to attempt to set noise-making records.

That they were able to adhere to this policy when they must have wanted to yell and parade undoubtedly was a powerful strain on their composure.

James A. Farley, chairman of the New York State athletic commission, in his shirt sleeves, took his time in coming out with the New York standard, and when his towering figure, six feet plus, swung into line, half a dozen states were ahead of him. Only a few of his fellows marched with him.

Louisiana was an easy winner, in the rush to head the parade. The standard bearer from the Bayou state, Harvey G. Field of Farmerville, was like a runner on his mark, crouched with a hand on the staff of his banner ready to go when Franklin D. Roosevelt reached his climax with, "The Happy Warrior, Alfred E. Smith."

John W. Davis and Mayor James J. Walker stood on adjoining chairs and watched the paraders march by. "Jimmy" wanted to know "what's all the shouting about?"

Confident that only the formality of calling the roll of states remained to complete the nomination of Governor Smith, the men in charge of his campaign stood remote in their determination to have little to say on the subject of their expectations.

Roosevelt and George R. Van Namee joined in a statement that Governor Smith had offered no advice to the convention or the resolutions committee on the platform in the making.

Klan Leaders "Just Look On" at Houston Convention

Houston, Tex., June 28 (INS)—The Klan is operating in Houston—but very much on the q.t.

Dr. Hiram W. Evans, head of the Klan, and H. C. McCall, a lieutenant, are a dozen big-h officials of the organization here to attend the Democratic convention.

A suite of rooms is occupied in a downtown hotel, but both Evans and McCall were shielded by aides. They were said to live in private homes.

The only word given out was that they were "just looking on."

Georgia Will March, but Not Thru

By JIMMY CORCORAN,
International News Correspondent

Houston, June 28—When George of Georgia was presented for nomination the bands played everything but "Marching Through Georgia."

It this boy ever reached the warm seat at the White House the Democrats could go another long vacation. The slogan would be: "Let George do it."

Although the three bands at the hall have achieved the art of playing three different tunes at the same time, they are still blowing as the wrong time. The right time would be when some bloke embarks on one of those non-stop speeches.

Some of the boys have taken exception to the last line of "Granny" Bowers' keynote speech: "To your tents, O Israel."

"He must think we're a lot of sheiks," quoth George Brennan, the big chief of Illinois.

"Yes and when did this gr Israel get into the Democratic party?" asks J. Ham Lewis, the man in the pink whiskers.

The Georgia delegation carried a streamer on which was painted: "The Constitution must be preserved." It was signed by Andrew Jackson in the painter's handwriting.

The Democrats believe that there are some things about it that ought to be canned.

Sidewalk merchants are endeavoring to dispose of beer with a donkey tied around the bottle.

"The kick of a mule in every bottle," they are yelling.

Four drunks from Indiana, wheeling away in one of the press rows last night were told they were in the wrong section. "Guess," one said, "we came in on the second section and that's the way we're going home."

For a time we thought the presentation of Al Smith would have more seconds than a minute.

MRS. ROSS HAS CHANCE TO GET ON TICKET

Houston, Jun 28—Mrs. Nellie T. Ross, former Governor of Wyoming, may be nominated for Vice-President. She seconded the nomination of Governor Smith and is being championed by her home state delegation, which claims that other votes are rallying to her support.

Several members of the California delegation announced a preference for the former woman Governor because of the active work she did in that state for Governor Smith.

A movement toward Senator Reed of Missouri for the second place brought a declaration from his supporters that he was in the race for the presidency and if defeated would support the choice of the party. They declared that no trade for the vice-presidency or a cabinet office would be considered.

Few claims were being advanced by the clan of Senator Robinson today, but there was a quiet undertone which indicated that his measure of delegate votes would be large.

Republican for 56 Years Will Vote for Al Smith

Walter O. Cobb has gone Democratic.

The veteran wharfinger of Pemberton Pier, for 56 years a staunch Republican in national affairs and one of the oldest G. O. P. voters of Hull, is a Smith man. Capt. Cobb, of an old Hingham family, hopes to see Smith nominated at Houston, for he wants the opportunity of voting for the New York governor.

In the days when the majority of the voters of Hull were supporters of Democracy Cobb and three others held true to the Republican party. But the veteran of the Old Guard has gone Democratic.

Sweeping Victory for Hoover, Says Mellon

By ROBERT S. THORNBURG,
International News Correspondent.

Washington, June 28 (INS)—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon does not believe that the American people are ready for a change in administration and has complete confidence in a sweeping victory for Hervert Hoover and Senator Curtis in the fall election.

This Mellon indicated to friends today as Hoover was preparing to resign his post in the Commerce Department and as the Democratic party was moving towards the close of its convention.

So confident is Mellon as to the outcome of the campaign that he has made reservations to sail for Europe about the middle of July.

He plans to spend a few weeks in the rural sections of England and France, but indicated he would visit Paris and London.

In the opinion of the secretary, political conditions are very little different today than prior to the election of President Harding in 1920 and Coolidge in 1924. Mellon feels that the attacks of the Democratic leaders on the Republicans at Houston are not specific and are "really a compliment." The fierce assaults of Claude Bowers, keynoter, and Senator Robinson, convention chairman, against the administration were general in nature, according to Mellon's view, and will not be regarded seriously by the rank and file of voters.

Mellon is understood to agree with the plans of Secretary Hoover for a short snappy campaign, with emphasis on economy of expenditures and avoidance of mud-throwing tactics. Mellon's remarks were hailed with satisfaction by the Hoover camp.

Meanwhile Hoover was conferring with J. R. Nutt, of Cleveland, the new Republican treasurer, relative to financial details of the campaign, and winding up his commerce department affairs preparatory to resignation.

Hoover may deliver his resignation to President Coolidge on his way to California about the middle of next month. With Chairman Hubert Work, also to resign, the President will have two cabinet pots to fill. The appointees probably will be suggested by the new Republican regime.

They Didn't Need Bryan to Kneel in Prayer

Houston, Tex., June 28 (INS)—What a difference four years make! At Madison Square Garden the Democratic platform drafting committee was engaged in such an acrimonious, uncompromising row over prohibition and the Klan that William Jennings Bryan asked his colleagues to kneel in prayer for peace and harmony.

Barely today 14 sleepy, weary men emerged from an all-night wrestle with the platform. They appeared happy, even jubilant, despite the loss of sleep.

"It was the most harmonious platform meeting I ever saw," said Senator Pittman of Nevada, chairman.

"There were no fights or harsh words."

We Have Accepted Farmers' Views Says D. I. Walsh

Houston, June 28 (INS)—"We have drafted in the platform word for word what the farm societies have asked us to give them," said Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, as the platform sub-committee broke up at 6:30 a. m. today after nine and a half hours of continuous session.

"Of course, we have not mentioned any bill by name, but the farmers will have no complaint against what we have given them," Walsh added.

NOBILE'S OWN STORY OF THRILLING RESCUE AMONG ICE FLOES

POLAR FLIER PICTURES GRIM PERILS IN FLOATING PACKS

Lost on the white wastes of the Arctic ice-cap after the destruction of his airship, the Italia, Gen. Umberto Nobile clung desperately to the belief that radio and airplane would combine to rescue him and his companions. Saved from the Arctic and now directing operations for the rescue of his fellows, General Nobile, after a month of enforced silence, today reviews his own story of his adventures. It constitutes the first official and authentic account of his dramatic disaster. In accordance with the agreement made before he undertook his Arctic exploration, General Nobile will tell his story exclusively through the Boston Evening American and associated newspapers.

By GENERAL UMBERTO NOBILE

(Copyright, 1928, by New York American in the United States and Canada, Great Britain, Germany, South America and Cuba. World rights reserved.)

Aboard the Citta di Milano, Virgo Bay, June 28 (by Wireless)—It was early on the morning of June 23 that Sergt. Biagi, our radio operator, brought to me in my tent a radio message from the Swedish expeditory at Murchison Bay, stating that a small Swedish airplane, fitted with runners and having aboard Lieuts. Tornberg and Rosenvard, was coming to our camp with the object of attempting a landing.

The message added that they were under orders to take me back to Murchison Bay.

During the previous night a large Swedish airplane, escorted by a small seaplane, had circled several times over our camp, dropping the following articles:

Three accumulators, one rifle, one folding boat, a box of medicines with bandages and splints for setting Ceccioni's broken leg, some oranges, cigarets and six bottles of whiskey.

These articles were dropped with great accuracy a few yards from the door of our tent by means of red parachutes.

We found a message attached to the medicinals advising me that a small airplane fitted with runners, the only one of its kind possessed by the Swedish expedition, would on the next evening attempt a landing at our camp in order to transport us back to Murchison Bay.

The message added:

"Please prepare an ice bank three hundred meters long, which has already been pointed out to me by yourself by signals, in the form of a T and marked out with the red parachutes."

RELIEF PLANE LANDS

The next evening we were having supper when we heard the humming of the approaching machines. We were having our first treat that evening, as for the first time we had added some pemmican and chocolate to our usual fare of white bear meat.

Moreover, I had authorized the distribution of a small ration of whiskey, which was a welcome substitute for our usual drink, consisting of water mixed with a few drops of alcohol taken from our compasses.

As soon as the plane became visible, I sent Lieut. Viglieri and Sergt. Biagi on the ice bank to make the prearranged signals, and ordered Ceccioni to get ready to be carried as far as the ice bank in order to be taken aboard the Swedish machine.

Lieut. Tornberg's machine was escorted by another, which hovered over our camp, while Tornberg, having circled two or three times, planed down and landed safely in the center of the ice bank.

A few moments later Lieuts. Tornberg and Rosenvard, accompanied by Viralleria and Biagi came inside the tent to interview me, as unfortunately I was unable to move. I greeted them and thanked them on behalf of all of us.

KILLED WHITE BEAR

Both of these gallant officers were almost moved to tears by the sight of our haggard faces and they asked us many times whether we had suffered from hunger. On my assurance that we had had enough to eat owing to Malmgren's luck in killing a white bear the very first day after our fall from the airship, the officers asked me to follow them aboard their airplane.

I answered that the first to go should be Ceccioni, owing to his serious condition. By now all my companions were listening to my talk with the Swedish aviators and they joined with the fliers in making me consent to go.

They pointed out that my presence at the base of the rescue operations was necessary and urgent for the organization of search parties to be sent to the rescue of our lost comrades who had fallen further east with the remains of the airship.

Lieut. Tornberg promised that he would return alone within three hours, as it was impossible for Ceccioni to be taken aboard as well as Lieut. Rosenvard. Moreover, it would have taken about three hours to have transported Ceccioni from the tent to the ice bank where the airplane was waiting.

At last I was forced to consent, and having been carried by my comrades to the ice bank I was placed in the plane. There I embraced each of those valiant men who had been a tower of strength to me during the last month of agony.

I entrusted to Lieut. Viglieri the task of arranging the transport of Ceccioni to the landing place, and that he was to be followed by Behonnek and Troiani.

Viglieri and Sergt. Biagi would be the last to go, Biagi especially being required up to the very last for the necessary radio signals regarding any further drifting of the ice floe. Both of these, compared to the rest of the crew, were in much the best physical condition.

At 11:20 p. m. the Swedish plane took off without mishap and reached Murchison Bay at 20 minutes after midnight.

I was received with unforgetable cordiality by the members of the Swedish mission, while Lieut. Tornberg, faithful to his promise, started off again alone after an interval of barely 30 minutes on his way back to our lonesome little camp. A seaplane escorted him.

PLANE CRASHES

I was torn with anxiety regarding the success of this second attempt. The commander of the Swedish mission very kindly spent those long five hours with me—the time which elapsed before the approach of the returning machine was announced.

My dismay can be imagined on learning that the escort plane only had returning and that Lieut Tornberg's plane had met with an accident in alighting on our ice floe.

As Lieut. Tornberg's machine was unfortunately the only one available that was fitted with special gear for landing on the ice, it became a matter of the utmost urgency to coordinate and use all the other flying material available, and arrange, if possible, the addition of runners to the landing equipment of the machines still at our disposal.

For these reasons I begged the chief of the Swedish mission to order my immediate transport to the Citta di Milano. This was done on the following afternoon, our journey from Murchison Bay to Virgo Bay, where the Citta di Milano had moved in order to be easier to reach after our rescue, taking only 40 minutes.

GREETED ON SHIP

The chief of the expedition supported me while I boarded the machine which carried us to the Citta di Milano.

I remember very little of that moment, charged as it was with emotion. My old comrades of the Citta Di Milano came and stood silently around me, staring at me and unable to speak. No doubt my long grey beard must have startled them. They filed past me one by one and shook me silently by the hand.

What seemed to me a long time elapsed before I was able to master my feelings sufficiently to have an interview with Capt. Romagna regarding the organization of the rescue work. The thought of my comrades still stranded on the ice floe was tormenting me, and still haunts me continuously.

But I feel confident that I can be much more useful to them here than in the red tent on the ice floe, where I learned to love them as brothers.

The Finnish aviators, together with the mechanics of the Citta Di Milano, have been fitting runnings on their Junkers seaplanes in place of the floats that did equip them. As soon as it is possible they will attempt to land on the ice floe and bring back to us our dear comrades and the gallant

Slaughter of White Bear Solves Food Question

White bear meat was the choicest food Gen. Umberto Nobile and his five companions had while prisoners on an ice floe after the Italia disaster.

In his first exclusive story of their month's stay on the ice, the noted Italian explorer tells how a member of their party killed a big white bear the first day after the Italia crashed.

Swedish aviator who has been with them since last Sunday.

ENCAMPMENT MOVED

I am sending them frequent messages of encouragement. I may say that even here aboard the Citta di Milano I feel as if I were still with them inside our little red tent where we endured so much together.

Unfortunately a thick fog covering the entire Spitzbergen zone has prevented any further attempt to take them comfort and help. We hear from Biagi that Tuesday they spent many hours transferring the encampment to the spot where the Swedish airplane lies disabled.

This is the second time that the red tent has been moved. The first was a fortnight ago when the fractures of the ice were threatening to split our encampment in two, and the disturbance was throwing horrible hummocks and pieces of broken ice over us. Then we moved to "White Bear Bank," so called by us because that was the spot where the white bear was killed by Malmgren on the first day after our disaster.

The Swedish officer sent me a message saying that he is happy to be of some help to my comrades, that he is in no hurry to return.

As soon as the fog is lifted one of the Finnish seaplanes, fitted with runners, will take off from Amsterdam Island.

Experiments carried out on the snow have proved that the change from floats to runners has been successful. The seaplane to go will be piloted by Lieut. Sarko.

IN ICE BLOCKADE

Two Italian seaplanes are also ready to go, as well as the Swedish three-engined airplane, which will make a wide survey to the east of the encampment in search of the missing group of seven men. We hope this will be accomplished soon if the visibility improves sufficiently.

It is unfortunate that we have no news of Captain Andreoni, who came so promptly and generously to our rescue. Capt. Hilser Larsen and Lieut. Lutzow Holm are still helpless aboard the Braganza, which is blockaded in the ice.

I think the seven men who drifted away on the airship after our fall will be found within a zone no more than 50 kilometers east of our encampment on a width of 10 degrees to the left or 10 degrees to the right.

When the control cabin became detached, the airship drifted away in the direction of 110 degrees, and soon afterward we saw at a distance of about 10 kilometers a thin column of smoke, probably produced by a gasoline tank falling on the ice and catching fire. It is my belief, therefore, that my comrades must be found in that direction.

I have had to break the news of the death of one of our party, our chief motorist, Vincenzo Pomella. When the Italia was overwhelmed by a weight of ice which accumulated on the envelope and fell on the ice pack, the little cabin containing the stern engine was the first to get the impact.

Pomella, who was in the cabin, was fatally hurt, and died soon afterwards in our arms without regaining consciousness. We buried him in the ice near the spot where the Swedish airplane landed last Sunday.

Pomella was a brave man and loyal comrade.

Of the three men led by Mariano, who went out from our camp in attempt to connect with the search parties, there has been no news whatever. Prof. Malmgren, the Swedish meteorologist, who was one of them, hoped to cover ten kilometers daily, but during their march to Foyn Island were able to ascertain that only about five kilometers a day could be actually covered, owing to ice conditions.

Reported Finding of Three Nobile Men Unconfirmed

Stockholm, Sweden, June 28 (AP)—Rumors that Dr. Finn Malmgren and his two Italian companions who left the main Nobile party on May 20 in an effort to reach land on foot, had been found, have no confirmation here. No news has been received in Stockholm regarding the report.

The added rumor that the party had a fierce fight with polar bears may have arisen from the fact that before leaving the Nobile group Dr. Malmgren shot a polar bear, thus supply the entire party with fresh meat.

WATERTOWN GIRL TO ENTER NOVITIATE

A farewell party to Miss Dorothy E. Berry of 238 Arlington st., Watertown, who is to enter the novitiate of the Sisters of Mercy at Manchester, N. H., was tendered by a group of friends at her home.

Miss Grey is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Gray. She is a native of Cambridge and a graduate of St. Mary's grammar school and the Cambridge high and latin school. She has lately been engaged in insurance and secretarial work.

DRIFTING FLOES PERIL NOBILE RESCUE CREWS

Kings Bay, Spitsbergen, June 28 (AP)—Airmen and vessels attempting to rescue five survivors of the airship Italia and the Swedish flier, Lieut. Lundborg, faced overwhelming odds today.

Dangerous ice floes added to the peril of rescue operations. The steamship Quest, used as a base by Swedish airmen, encountered a movement of ice from the east across Hinlopen strait and the crew was compelled to leave Wahlenberg bay and seek refuge on the north coast of North-east Land.

The moving ice also interfered with rescue work by causing a day delay in the shift in the position of the marooned men.

It was decided that no landings on the ice by large planes would be attempted. A Finnish seaplane was fitted with skis and given a test at Virgo Bay in making a landing on a small area. The plane made a perfect landing on a snow field and stopped after a run of less than 100 yards.

Criticism has been voiced in Italy over the failure of Gen. Umberto Nobile to report the death of Vincenzo Pomella in the crash of the Italia until after Nobile himself had been rescued.

The Roman newspaper Tribuna, answering Nobile's critics, said the commander of the Italia preferred to wait until he could break the news more gently to the widow and family of Pomella. Since the navy's cipher code was lost in the crash, Nobile was unable to communicate by code until he reached the base ship Citta di Milano. He did not want to broadcast the news so that it could be picked up by all listeners.

BOSTON JULY 4 PROGRAM IS FIXED UP

Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, Congresswoman from Lowell; Arnold Isenberg, Boston latin school senior, and Emilia D. Wilfert, honor student at the high school of practical arts, will share high honors in Bostons observance of Independence Day, the program of which was announced today.

The celebration will consist of the usual district observances, flag raising and exercises at City Hall, the Old State House and Faneuil Hall, together with a pageant and fireworks on the Common.

Young Isenberg will read the Declaration of Independence from a balcony of Old State House, in accordance with old custom. Mrs. Rogers is to be the Faneuil Hall orator and Miss Wilfret will read the preamble of the Constitution in the City of Liberty.

Marines from the Navy Yard and the band of the U. S. S. Wyoming will parade from City Hall, where at 9:30 the flag-raising will take place, to the other shrines of history.

Mayor Nichols will play a leading role in the exercises. Pres. Green of the City Council will assist in the flag-raising and State Comdr. Reth of the American Legion will speak at Faneuil Hall in an antroductory address. Rev. Mgr. M. J. Splaine of St. Joseph's Church, Roxbury, and Rev. George J. Prescott of the Church of the Good Shepherd, will participate in the Faneuil Hall exercises.

WOMAN FIGHTS INTRUDER IN CHELSEA HOME

Screams and the scratching fingernails of Mrs. Annie Toltz, 35, of Third st., Chelsea, drove an intruder from her bedroom early today.

Although terrified and almost hysterical after being awakened by the hand of the stranger as she groped in the black room, Mrs. Toltz gave furious battle while she cried for help.

In the battle, that ended when the intruder finally found the open window through which he had entered and through which he dove for his exit, Mrs. Toltz's nightgown was ripped to shreds.

She could give but a meagre description of the midnight prowler.

VETS ASK LESS MEMORIALS, MORE MONEY

Denver, June 28 (AP)—Backed by a strong delegation from Eastern States, a resolution disapproving all public monuments until the needs of disabled veterans of the World War have been properly met, was passed by the resolutions committee of the disabled American veterans. It will be submitted to the convention today.

As drawn by Louis Sklarey, commander of the New Jersey department, the resolution takes the position that all public moneys intended for monuments or other memorials to the nation's hero dead should be spent to relieve the suffering of maimed ex-soldiers.

More than 100,000 veterans now receiving compensation, it was estimated, would receive increases in their payments from the Government of from a few dollars to $12 a month, if another resolution backed by the Dallas, Tex., delegation, should pass the convention and be put through Congress.

Charles Hondl, commander of the Dallas delegation, said the resolution provided for increasing the minimum compensation for veterans rated as ten per cent or more disabled from $8 a month to $30 a month.

A resolution which would place the veterans on record as favoring alteration of the Volstead act in such a way as to allow the manufacture, possession and consumption of light wines and beer was passed along to the legislative committee by the resolutions body.

2 DEAD, 2 SHOT IN GANG WAR

Detroit, June 28 (INS)—Two men were killed outright, a constable perhaps fatally wounded and a woman shot in the hand in a fresh outbreak of gang warfare here.

The dead are: August J. "Gus" Nyklel, wealthy bootlegger and sportsman, and Michael Deplow, also known as a bootlegger. The wounded are: Constable Ed McPherson of Rivers Rouge, and Mrs. Obiletta Krolzyck.

Nyklel was in his saloon at West Jefferson and Copeland aves. when two men entered and asked him if he were "Gus" Nyklel. The shooting opened at that, with Nyklel fall ing and the gunmen running out.

Constable McPherson, who was passing, joined in the shooting in the belief that two men running were escaping bandits. One of his bullets brought Deplea down.

Nyklel and his three brothers, William, Frank and Joseph were known as one of the most wealthy bootlegging combines.

FUND FOR SEA FLIERS GROWS; DO YOUR BIT!

Harry Lyon, the Bostonian who navigated the Atlantic Cross on its epochal flight, and James Warner, the plane's American radio operator, will receive a more lasting tribute than the mere clamour of the crowd when they return to this country from Australia.

The Hearst fund for the two Yankee members of the plane's crew is growing daily, but a more liberal response is needed if the financial recognition of their feat is to equal the $25,000 given by the Australian government to their two Australian companions.

It's your chance to reward real achievement.

HARDWARE MEN SEE "FLAMING YOUTH" AS AID

Flaming youth, which revolutionized the hosiery, hair goods and other industries, is to be invited to make its mark on the retail hardware business.

Hard-headed business men today decided at a meeting of the 24th congress of the National Retail Hardware Association at the Hotel Statler to invite the boys and girls to join their sales forces in an effort to fight the dread bugbear of chain store competition.

"The youthful viewpoint is what we need," declared Delegate Alfred Rosenberg, Rockville, Ct., in the discussions of the profession of Henry Brown, the average hardware man.

"We are not afraid of the chain stores," he continued. "Down in his heart every Henry Brown here knows that we do business at a profit if he adapts himself to the changing times. The boys and girls can help us meet these changes, one of which is the new interest women have taken in budgeting the family income."

DUPONTS MAY OPERATE ANDROSCOGGIN MILL

Lewiston, Me., June 28 (AP)—Rumors that the Dupont interests would take over the extensive Androscoggin mill property were in circulation here today. The Duponts are large manufacturers of rayon. Stockholders of the mill voted Tuesday to liquidate and closing of the plant was expected within a few weeks.

One alderman declared he had been assured that plans were completed even before the vote to liquidate was taken.

HELD FOR THE SLAYING OF "BIG TIM" MURPHY

Chicago, June 28 (INS)—Gangland's favorite method of "springing" criminals from the tenacles of the law failed here today when John Hand, identified as a "racketeer" and minor labor union worker, was formally booked for the murder of "Big Tim" Murphy, slain by gunmen.

While lawyers frantically prepared to obtain writs of habeas of corpus for Hand, police booked slim for the slaying, a crime time extending their dragnets for three other men.

TWO-ALARM BLAZE FOLLOWS EXPLOSION

A terrific explosion that tore the top off a 40-foot still filled with tar, at the plant of the Samuel Cabot Company, Inc., in Chelsea, early today, caused much excitement in that city and in East Boston.

Flames that were visible for miles followed the first explosion and successive detonations as the fire licked the inflammable contents added to the excitement. Two alarms of fire were sounded in Chelsea and apparatus from East Boston hurried to the scene.

NEW ORGAN PLANNED FOR REVERE THEATRE

Work started today on the installation of the new Moller organ at the Crescent Gardens Theatre, Revere Beach. This theatre, as well as the Crescent Gardens Ball Room, was recently added to the ever growing Interstate Theatre Circuit, and the ordering of this new organ was one of the first steps taken by the new management, in its policy of offering the people of Revere and visitors to the beach, the best in modern theatre entertainment.

The instrument selected is of unusual beauty of tone, and has a great variety of expression. It is of a size rarely found in a suburban theatre and is certain to win the approval of the Crescent Gardens audiences.

It is expected that the organ will be ready about July 20. A musical treat may be looked forward to by Revere theatergoers at that time.

CARSON BEACH IS CALLED 'DEATH TRAP'

FACT Story of the German Submarines From Secret Records

CHAPTER 3.

THE seventeen months that elapsed between England's despair in April of 1917 and the smooth functioning of the American naval machine in September of 1918, illustrated in the preceding two chapters, were a period of titanic effort on both sides of the Atlantic.

It was not until we had entered the war that we found our fortunes committed to a lost cause. The only course our national temperament would accept under the circumstances was one designed to bring about a reversal of the verdict—no matter what the cost.

Brains, muscle, money and resources were all devoted to the task of reversing the course of history. The defeat of Germany after that nation had won the war was almost entirely an American accomplishment.

Our Allies had given their best to the cause, and they had lost. The remaining years of the struggle saw them with less to give than they had given before our entrance into the war. Germany was at the very crest of her power. Russia had crashed into bloody ruin and the hope of the world rested upon the ability of the United States to make war.

A peaceful people, we were unready in the use of soldiers, fleets and munitions. What we had was good, but we didn't have enough.

The task of striking the first blow fell to the Navy. The scene of battle was three thousand miles away. A broad ocean and 100 submarines lay between our plenty and Europe's need.

The sea must be bridged and the submarines must be destroyed; both parts of the problem were a job for the Navy. This story will attempt to sketch in outline the picture which the United States Navy painted on the scroll of history.

They were on their way to England to establish the first contact between the Navy Department and the British Admiralty.

Admiral Sims was soon to raise his flag as Commander of the United States Naval Forces in European waters, but his purpose on the occasion of his secret voyage to London was to discover the truth about the naval situation. What he discovered has been told in part in the introduction of this chronicle.

Although the New York was a peaceful passenger ship, it was not to reach Liverpool without encountering evidence of war. When the ship was a few miles off the mouth of the English harbor a tremendous roar and a shock that sent passengers flying from their feet announced the explosion of a mine.

Board to Study 4000 Submarine Safety Devices

Washington, June 28—The special board authorized by Congress to study more than 4000 submarine safety devices, submitted after the S4 disaster off Provincetown, Mass., convenes here tomorrow. There is available $200,000 for the study.

The board members announced at the Navy Department are: Thomas A. Scott of New York, former head of the Merritt-Scott Chapman Salvage Company of New London, Conn.; W. R. Whitney of Schenectady, N. Y., an engineer in the research laboratory of the General Electric Company, and Rear Admirals D. W. Taylor and Joseph Strauss, both retired.

MILLION METHODISTS START NEW CRUSADE

Chicago, June 28 (AP)—A new crusade in which 1,000,000 Methodists will engage to pray, to give and to lead others into the Christian church is being launched by the world service commission of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

"The chief enemies of Christianity today are secularism, racial class national antagonisms—sin in all its hideous personal and group manifestations," said a report adopted by the commission.

HEALTH PERIL SEEN IN SOME LUNCH ROOMS

D. F. T. Mullowney

Director Hearst Health Laboratory

Sanitary conditions in certain low price restaurants in the South End have reached such an unsatisfactory stage that a general survey by the local health authorities is eminently desirable.

In a recent tour of this district I noted conditions that call for severe rebuke, if not a session in court for careless proprietors.

Dr. Mullowney

In order to gain a first hand view of the problem, I visited a lunch room in that district recently.

It seems an unjust hardship that good people who are forced by their means to seek the low priced lunch should be subjected to the risks of food served in an unclean manner, and even unwholesome food.

A LAZY ATTITUDE

Cleanliness is rarely a matter of extra expense, and lack of it may ordinarily be explained by a lazy and indifferent attitude on the part of the proprietor.

The food law itself makes no differentiation between low or high-priced food service, but insists at all times on clean, wholesome food served in a sanitary manner.

The place I visited was far from clean. The floors were sadly in need of cleaning. The walls and ceiling spoke volumes of neglect.

The sink was in a sloppy condition, and the ice chest where foodstuffs are kept was exceedingly dirty. The counters where customers were served were guiltless of attention with soap and water.

LACK OF FACILITIES

Worst of all, the silverware, utensils and dishes bore ample evidence that facilities for proper sterilization of dishes and other equipment are lacking.

The health regulations provide that food establishments should keep on tap a supply of running hot water or some other suitable

2 START RACE AROUND WORLD TOMORROW

New York, June 28—Round the world in 23 days will be the breakneck speed record which John Henry Mears, internationally known globe trotter, and Charles B. D. Collyer, noted air pilot, will seek to establish when they take off from New York harbor at 5 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The trip will be a combination of airplane and steamship travel. The plane will be loaded on the White Star liner Olympic this afternoon. The boat will depart for Havre, France, at midnight.

Mears and Collyer will wait until morning then fly out in a seaplane and board the boat at sea. In this manner they will cut down their actual time of travel five hours at the outset of their globe-circling journey.

Their start will be from the East River in front of the Hearst Building, No. 210 South st.

PLANE IN LAST TESTS

Final tests were given their plane at Curtiss Field yesterday afternoon. The craft is of the single-motored type and is constructed to enable the wide spread of its wings to be folded back while in shipment.

Accompanying the world speed stars will be the first dog to ever attempt to circle the globe. While Mears and Collyer were primping their plane at the Fairchild hangars Miss Virgin Osmond, a member of the "Three Musketeers" company now appearing at the Lyric Theater appeared beside her pet Sealyham dog. Said she:

"I wish you would take my dog along with you. He will bring you good luck."

DOG GETS AIR TEST

Mears picked the dog into the plane with the remark:

"Well, we'll see if he is a flier."

Up they went, with Collyer at the controls and Mears, Miss Osmond and the dog in the rear cockpit. Exhibiting a true flying instinct, the Sealyham kept his eyes on the instrument board and his ears cocked to the even humming of the motor. When the party finally landed Mears granted Miss Osmond's wish.

Miss Osmond said the dog's name was "Clumsy," but this probably will be changed to something more befitting a flier and globe specialist before the takeoff.

"Last Survivor" Dead

Lewis Here for Title Mat Bout With Sonnenberg

CHAMPION TRAINS AT TOLAND'S

Dynamite Confident He Will Conquer Title Holder at Arena Tomorrow Night

Ed "Strangler" Lewis, heavyweight champion of the world, was to work out at Toland's Gymnasium this afternoon.

Tomorrow night in the Arena he will defend his title against the lad touring from Minot of Lynnmite fame, Sonnenberg, the most talked of athlete in New England. Despite the fact that there are still thousands of seats to be disposed of in the enormous Arena, it seems probable that a packed house will greet the two heavyweights when they square away in the most important wrestling match ever scheduled for a New England ring.

Lewis rated a favorite, because of his experience—a schooling in the fine points of the game that has carried him from coast to coast, from one corner of the world to another, and that has kept him undefeated for six long years of wrestling all comers.

It is doubtful, however, if Lewis has ever faced a man with the competitive spirit of Sonnenberg. The old Dartmouth tackle has always rung to height when his personal was greatest. It was that fatality which made him one of the finest set tackles that ever swarmed all over a football field. It is that which promises to make him the greatest wrestler in the history of the game.

SONNY WINS FOR SONNY

The challenger has been wrestling only six months—half a year of smashing and crushing his way through all opposition, in that six months, his flying tackle has become famous; he has tossed 39 opponents; his shoulders have never touched the mat; he has been marching straight to the throne room of the Strangler.

"Certainly I want the match," said Sonny, as he finished his training at Toland's gym. "I am 27, and Lewis 37. He's riding for a fall and maybe I'm the one to throw him. I'm strong, my wind is good, and I am ready to go. Lewis will be in a battle."

They say that youth will be served, and when that youth happens to be 242 pounds of sinew and steel, with a heart that knows no quitting, his chances cannot be discounted. Sonnenberg is ready for the test, ready as he ever will be, and the whole town will be cheering him on to victory in the battle with Lewis.

Special police arrangements have been made to handle the crowds that are expected at the Arena tomorrow night. It will be the biggest night in the history of wrestling, and Paul Bowser, the promoter, has taken every step to protect the interests of you and the public, so that it prom ises to be the best conducted boxing events in years.

Tickets will go on sale at ten o'clock today, to relieve the rush at Bower's office, No. 341 Washington st. There are still 6000 seats remaining to be sold, and it is confidently expected that before the house is already packed to the doors and half of them were shipped to the Arena with half remaining in Bowser's office.

STRONG PRELIM CARD

The preliminaries are being generally overlooked because of the tremendous interest in the main bout. Yet the preliminary card, which will start at eight o'clock, is the finest ever offered at a local wrestling show.

The semi final between John Freeberg and Farmer George McLennan, a finish match, ranks as a headliner in any city in the country. Then the Joe Malcewicz-Sammy Stein mix battle.

In the other bouts, Charlie Hanson will be paired with Bull Komar, Wayne Munson with Jack Martin, and Pat McGill, who will weigh in, scale bout, with Frank Bun-

Miller Ties 100 Meters Record at Stadium

Al Miller ran 100 metres in Harvard Stadium yesterday in 10.3-5 seconds. That time set up the Olympic record for the distance and is within one-fifth of a second of the world record.

Pooch Donovan started him, Ed die Farrell, Harvard coach, timed and Joako Mikkola, his assistant, held watches. Farrell caught Miller in 10.3-5 and Mikkola a watch reed a shade faster.

Dave White of Harvard was set only six yards in front of Miller to draw him out. Big Al caught him at about the 70-yard mark. Miller is in perfect condition now, being about five pounds lighter than the was when the Eastern Olympic tryouts were staged.

INCOMPARABLE NICK AND SCHACHT IN ACT

Nick Altrock and his assistant fun maker Al Schacht, made their usual hit in Boston between games yesterday.

They've got a new skit now in which Schacht acts as umpire and Nick as player which winds up in a boxing bout and they are exceedingly amusing.

CHAPMAN FEELS CONFIDENT

"It may be true that I am no longer as young and as strong as when I won my first American motor paced title, as Frankie Keenan says, but I have one thing in my favor, and that is plenty of experience," declared George Chapman, the veteran motor pacemaker yesterday as he was busy getting a workout at the Revere bike track.

"And the experience in the bike game, as in any other sport, counts a lot. The average bike fan might not know it, but knowing when to pass an opponent, that is catching him at the right moment, is something that takes only what years in the game bring—that is experience.

"Yes, I believe my experience will more than match the youth of Keenan Saturday night. I am now in a special match race. And please don't get the idea that I am old and tottering. I am a veteran, true enough, but I still have a few more years left in me and I hope to win the paced championship a few more times at least."

Keenan and Chapman will race three 10-mile heats Saturday night, the feature of the card at the Revere cycle track.

In another motor-paced race Jerry Wyndam, Belgium; Larry Jaffney, New York; Dan Pipcione, Providence; Frank Robb, Everett, and Lea Marcell, East Boston, meet in a 20-mile handicap race. The first three will start from scratch. Robb will have a three-lap handicap and Piaggoli two.

HELEN WINS; COEN LOSES AT WIMBLEDON

Wimbledon, England, June 28 (AP)—Wilbur Coen of Kansas City, member of the American Davis cup team, was eliminated in the men's singles of the British tennis championships today by H. W. Austin, brilliant young English star, in a hard-fought three-set match.

Young Sidney Wood, former American boys' champion, was eliminated by Pierre Landry of France, 6—4, 6—1, 6—4.

In the women's singles Penelope Anderson defeated Miss Davies of England, 6—3, 6—4. Ermyntrude Harvey of England eliminated Miss P. E. Mudford, 6—1, 6—3.

Helen Wills, defending her Wimbledon championship, successfully met her second test of the 1928 tournament today, eliminating Miss V. Gallay of England in easy fashion, 6—0, 6—1.

Playing in top form, Miss Wills crushed her opponent without the loss of a game. It was her second victory of the tournament. She defeated Miss Elsie A. Goldsack, English hard court title-holder, in straight sets yesterday, 6—3, 6—1.

Elizabeth Ryan, veteran California, won her match with Miss J. Gallay of England, 6—4, 6—1.

Evelyn Colyer of England defeated her countrywoman, Joan Fry, in a hard fought three-set match, 6—4, 3—6, 6—4.

Jean Borotra, one of France's musketeers, met a worthy foe in F. D. B. Seeme of South Africa, but advanced in straight sets, 7—5, 7—5, 6—3.

Another of the musketeers, Jacques Brugnon, defeated O'Callaghan, 6—2, 6—3, 6—4.

Rene Lacoste, an ace of the French Davis Cup forces, beat back the challenge of George Lott, young American, in three sets. The scores were 6—1, 9—7, 6—3, 6—2.

John Hennessey of the American Davis Cup squad kept up his match through the singles ranks by defeating G. R. Sherwell of England, 6—4, 7—5, 6—2.

Senorita Filia de Alvares, Spanish star, who took the second set, 9—7.

Lott staged a comeback in the third set, taking Lacoste's measure, 8 to 6.

Giants Owner Denies Rumored Sale of Club

New York, June 28—Charles A. Stoneham, owner of the New York National League team said that there were no grounds for the announcement to the effect that Ted Rickard's associates might buy the Giants.

Stoneham emphatically declared that there have been absolutely no negotiations made for such a sale.

Ted Rickard made the announcement the other day that he would not be at all surprised if the sale of the team was announced.

MR. BOSTON

By Jack Conway

IT was at Myles MacSweeney's wedding and Mr. Boston was wandering around the cellar with the rest of the boys when he bumped into Jimmy Brown who is generalissimo of the vio let-ray machines at Jim Toland's Gym. Funny thing about cellars is that they make people very confidential and friendly, especially at weddings.

Jimmy got to talking about Gus Sonnenberg, former Dartmouth football hero, who battles Strangler Lewis for the world's championship at the Arena on Friday night.

"I HAVE trained a great many athletes during the past 20 years," said Jimmy in a reminiscent mood, "but I have never seen a fellow who had as much strength and such wonderful muscles as Sonnenberg. His muscles dance and ripple on a body which is 100 per cent perfect.

"Lewis will have experience and skill on his side in the title skirmish, but he will require more than this if he is to stop the Dynamiter. I look for a new world's champion Friday night."

"SO do a great many other people," chirped Mr. Boston as he continued his investigation of the cellar.

Another funny thing about cellars, especially at weddings, is that they are very cool when one first enters them, but after lingering around for an hour or so they seem as hot as a turkish bath. Maybe it is merely the imagination. Maybe!

"CLEAN sport lost a sterling advocate in the passing of Larry Sweeney," said Mr. Boston. "I had the good fortune to number Larry among my friends for a good many years. Above all he was a great reporter. His newspaper articles on big news happenings and major sporting events were classics. His writings were eminently fair and reflected his fine character.

"Larry wrote everything well, but I believe he got his greatest enjoyment reporting boxing bouts and writing sidelights on the stars of the ring. At heart he was a boxing fan and would sit in by the hour with boxers and managers and fan on the sport.

"Several years before boxing was legalized in Massachusetts when the standard of refereeing was not very high, it was upon my suggestion that Larry was called back as a referee of the major bouts in Boston.

"Sport will miss Larry's kindly counsel and gifted pen. The newspaper profession has lost one of its leaders, one who can truthfully be called a great reporter."

MR. BOSTON has been kept busy trying to settle arguments on the merits of the decision in the recent Mello-Murphy bout. Most of the fans who witnessed the bouts here regards Murphy, Mello's brilliant finish in the last two rounds entitled him to the verdict," is the way the battle looked to Mr. Boston.

"FENWAY PARK will not be half large enough for the crowd which will want to see the Yankees and Red Sox in their double header on Saturday," prated Mr. Boston. "With Babe Ruth walloping more homers than ever, the Yankees are a tremendous box office attraction. Last Saturday, in New York, the Sox tossed the Yankees for a double loss. May they repeat at the Fenway on Saturday.

"THE success of the Red Sox this year has been due to good pitching. Morris, MacFayden, Ruffing and Russell have delivered the goods. Most ball clubs are no better than their pitching staffs."

Rogusa II. First to Reach Bermuda

Hamilton, Bermuda, June 28 (AP)—Headed swiftly for St. David's Light, six of the twenty-five yachts entered in the various classes of the New London to Bermuda yacht race had crossed the finish line today in the midst of a noisy welcome, while others had been sighted, but not identified.

The Rogusa II, owned by Russell Grinnell, and having a time allowance of 6 hours 54 minutes, was the first to reach Bermuda over the 660-mile course, crossing the finish line at 10:38 o'clock last night.

Then came Yankee Girl II, owned by Dr. G. N. Warren, and with a time allowance of 4 hours 49 minutes and 30 seconds, which crossed the line at 12:28 o'clock this morning. She was followed by the Dragoon, owned by Robert M. Babson at 3:28 a. m. the Malabar IX, owned by Dr. F. C. Goodrich, at 4:8, and the Teal, owned by R. Graham Bigelow, at 6:28.

It is believed that all the entrants will arrive during the day.

After crossing the finish line, the six boats which already have come in remained at St. George's until this morning and then came into Hamilton Harbor, where they were given an enthusiastic welcome by the steam craft which had gathered.

New Plan for Payment of Coaches Suggested

At a meeting of the Lynn School Board a new plan for the payment of athletic coaches in the Lynn high schools was brought forward by Superintendent Harvey Graves.

Under the suggested system, which is called the "piece-work plan," the present coaches would remain as teacher-coaches. The mentors are William Joyce of Lynn Classical, and Thomas J. Whalen of English high.

The plan calls for them to receive a salary of $2500 as teacher-coaches, with the other sports work divided between the two and special stipends attached. Each coach could select the branches he desired to care for.

The salary for this extra work would amount to $1.50 per year.

FINAL TESTS ON FOR AUTO RACERS

Roaring motors and whizzing steel chariots are waking the echoes of the staid confines of Salem, N. H., these days after a period of quiet, during which the greatest race drivers of the world sat idly by and watched the rain come down almost incessantly.

Dave Evans, Lou Moore, Cliff Woodbury, Bob McDonough and Leo Meyer reeled off 50 to 56 laps apiece in the final tuning up of their cars before the actions sperm tests begin. These elimination tests are expected to see drivers of the type of Tony Kaech, Leon Duray and Lou Meyer touch unprecedented speed marks in their assault upon time.

Meanwhile the rail birds are getting their fill of speed. Each day sees from 1000 to 1500 of them crowding the fences watching their idols reel off lap after lap in setting their steel chariots adjusted to racing condition.

General Manager Shelbaby is anticipating the visit of the A. A. A. officials, who are expected to be at the track tomorrow for the last O. K. before the Independence Day classic.

Another important announcement from the race quarters is that Al F. Marx, president of the Boston Manufacturing Company and long an automobile race enthusiast, has accepted the post of referee for the holiday event.

Sox Have Chance to Crash First Division Today

ANOTHER DOUBLE WIN WILL START CLIMB

By NICK FLATLEY

BILL CARRIGAN'S Red Sox may rocket into the first division of the A. L. this afternoon. If they can polish off the Washington Senators a couple of times—which they did very easily yesterday—they will haul the Solons back out of fourth place.

Another double trimph will see the Fenways passing the present invaders, and if more luck than that is with them, they can also waltz past the Cleveland Indians. Provided the Indians lose.

One naturally starts figuring—

"WHAT is it?" Cleonie cried in immediate alarm.

He uttered a little laugh of bitterness, of his piousness.

"I seem to remember that the rascal said the trick was his. A trick, indeed. Come here." She crossed to his side at once. "See for yourself what he has written, the bitter jester."

She took the sheet from his hand and read:

"My dear ci-devant—This is to assure you that within the next 24 hours two things of interest will happen. You will be free, and the dance of the Mirliflores will at last have come to an end. They have proved a tedious entertainment, and I'm glad to be done with them.

"She looked at M. de Cordal in blank dismay. For seconds neither spoke. Then he counted confidently upon tricking me with it as he did, the resourceful dog; so confidently that he didn't hesitate to indulge his wicked humor even with my pistol at his head."

"Yes," she said. "He was like that. And his humor was the death of him."

They looked at each other help-lessly, almost despairingly, bereft of the staff upon which they had so confidently looked to lean.

THE MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE -:- By HELEN ROWLAND

By HELEN ROWLAND.

I AM beginning to think that the American girl is being highly misrepresented.

* * *

I have never yet seen a girl who dressed as weirdly as a John Held flapper or who did her hair in a wet-mop effect. Neither have I ever met one who was so snappily rowdy as the wise-cracking damsels in the college magazines. Perhaps I should travel more.

* * *

If there are any girls who loll around on men's laps in drawing rooms at teas and parties, and dance on pianos juggling cocktail shakers, like those in the erotic magazines, I've missed them—and the loss is all mine!

* * *

If any modern American girl is as hard-boiled and utterly colorless as the stony-eyed heroins of most popular novels, ash has escaped my eagle eye—or else I've been terribly deceived.

* * *

In short, I am beginning to suspect that this picture of the gin-drinking, gold-digging, wise-cracking, non-marrying modern girl is a fiction of man's imagination.

* * *

If a ma can only convince himself that all women are rowdy, cold-blooded and shallow, he has a wonderful alibi for keeping out of marriage—and keeping all his time and money for himself.

* * *

Certainly, nobody could expect any fair young maa in possession of all his faculties to risk himself alone after dark with any of the little hard-boiled four-flushers in the comic cstrips or the funny magazines.

* * *

But all these are WRONG! The great fault of the modern American girl, today, is not that she is too hard-boiled, but that she is too SOFT-BOILED. She is TOO KIND.

* * *

As long as she continues to make life one long, sweet song for the average man, naturally he is not going to exchange it for a lullaby.

As long as he can call her up on 10 minutes' notice and break the news that he is going to bestow his society on her for the evening, why should he give her 24 hours to think it over? As long as he can announce where he is going to take her and receive polite gurgles of joy, why should he consult her taste in the matter?

* * *

As long as he can do all his courting with a few gallons of gasoline, why should he bother with sentimental nonsense like flowers or books?

* * *

The modern girl is a good little scout—but she's too easily pleased, too easily satisfied, too soft-boiled. Her grandmother was a 30-minute egg beside her!

Sour Stomach
Sweetened instantly

Just a tasteless dose of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in water. That is an alkali, effective, yet harmless. It has been the standard antacid for 50 years among physicians everywhere. One spoonful will neutralize at once many times its volume in acid. It is the right way, the quick, pleasant and efficient way to kill the excess acid. The stomach becomes sweet, the pain departs. You are happy again in five minutes.

Don't depend on crude methods. Employ the best way yet evolved in all the years of searching. That is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any druggists.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor, Charles H. Phillips, since 1875.

Interest payable without deduction for Federal Income Tax up to 2%. Pennsylvania and Connecticut 4 Mills Personal Property Taxes and Massachusetts Income Tax up to 6%, refundable in accordance with conditions to be stated in the Indenture.

Capitalization
(to be outstanding upon completion of present financing)

Funded Debt:	Ten-Year Convertible 6% Gold Debentures (this issue),	$10,000,000
Capital Stock:	Common Stock, no par value: authorized, 2,750,000 shares; to be reserved for conversion of Debentures, 550,000 shares; to be issued and outstanding,	2,200,000 shares

From his letter, General Avery D. Andrews, President, further summarizes as follows:

COLON OIL CORPORATION, a Delaware corporation, was organized by the Royal Dutch-Shell Group and Carib Syndicate, Ltd., to take over the entire share capital of The Colon Development Company, Ltd., a British corporation. A majority of the stock of Colon Oil Corporation to be presently outstanding will be owned by the Royal Dutch-Shell Group. The Corporation has arranged to enter into a contract of management with The Batavian Petroleum Company (De Bataafsche Petroleum Maatschappij).

CONCESSION AND ASSETS: The Colon Development Company, Ltd. owns a concession covering approximately 2,100,000 acres in the Maracaibo Basin of Venezuela, one of the richest oil areas in the world. Its properties definitely indicate geological similarity to those properties supporting major operations within this region. Since acquiring the concession, The Colon Development Company, Ltd. has expended approximately $12,000,000 in geological surveys, construction work, and in the drilling of more than 30 exploratory wells from which a daily capped production of approximately 13,000 barrels per day has been obtained and a large oil territory proven. Over nine hundred men are now engaged in work on the properties. Extensive facilities in housing, equipment and in river, road and rail transportation have been constructed by The Colon Development Company, Ltd. A consolidated statement of Colon Oil Corporation and The Colon Development Company, Ltd., as of June 30, 1928, will show no indebtedness of any character other than that incident to current items.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE: Proceeds of these $10,000,000 Debentures will be used primarily for the construction of a pipe line with a daily capacity of approximately 20,000 barrels, to cost about $2,500,000, the drilling of additional wells and for further expenditures estimated to be sufficient to develop the property to pipe line capacity. It is estimated that the Corporation's construction program preparatory to marketing oil will be completed within two years.

CONVERTIBILITY: The Debentures will be convertible at the option of the holder, at any time prior to maturity or the redemption date, into common stock of Colon Oil Corporation at the rate of 55 shares of no par value stock for each $1,000 principal amount of Debentures. The Indenture will contain provisions to protect the conversion right against dilution through the issuance of additional common stock at less than $18.20 per share.

INDENTURE: The Indenture will further provide, in substance, among other things: that cash dividends shall not be paid upon the common stock of the Corporation unless an amount equal to the dividend so paid shall be concurrently applied to the retirement of Debentures; that the proceeds of the sale of any concession or any interest therein, or any shares of stock of any subsidiary company, shall likewise be applied to the retirement of Debentures; and that neither the Corporation nor any subsidiary company shall mortgage or pledge any of its assets (other than to the Corporation) without securing these Debentures equally and ratably with the obligations to be so secured.

These Debentures, being the obligation of a company whose properties are in the development stage, depend to a substantial extent for their security upon the future realization of present favorable indications. We believe they hold attractive possibilities.

Price 100 and accrued interest, to yield 6%

THEY LET GOOD STOCKS GO AND KEEP THE BAD

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor

What do most men sell when they are trading on margin and on pocket breaks? Many brokers have had a chance to study this question lately. The old rule has not changed, they tell me. Their customers insist on selling their best securities and keeping their most speculative, although this course is apt to lead to additional losses. The reason men sell their best securities is because it is necessary for them to bolster up their bank accounts and they pick the things to sell that show them the least loss.

* * *

This explains why some good stocks are selling "away down" while some poor stocks are holding their own very nicely.

* * *

Vice-President David Sarnoff of Radio Corporation has just returned from Europe and looks forward to a very successful year for his company. He is the latest to deny persistent rumors that Radio will soon merge with International Telephone & Telegraph Co.

* * *

Mr. Sarnoff, frequently heard as a speaker by Boston business men, was operator at the Siasconset station, Nantucket Island, back in 1904. Later he was wireless operator on the steamship Hayward. In 1910, Mr. Sarnoff, imbued with a world of adventure, set sail on the steamship Bosthic and achieved fame as the first radio operator to get the Arctic night vibrating with his sending apparatus—the first operator to tune in on incoming messages in the Circle.

* * *

And in 1912 it was David Sarnoff, radio inspector for Marconi Company, who first heard the historic "S O S" flashed by the Titanic as it splintered itself on a giant iceberg in the middle of the night. And it was Sarnoff who relayed and echoed that cry for assistance over the entire country and sent scores of ships to its assistance.

* * *

Mr. Sarnoff, discussing the rumored merger, declares: "The recent law enacted, setting up the radio regulatory commission, is generally interpreted as prohibiting radio and cable companies from merging. However, if America is to retain her advantage in the radio field, such mergers will have to be brought about."

* * *

Aside from the technical details of the plan of reorganization of the International Paper Co., the outstanding fact is that the new holding concern, International Paper & Power Co., will be constituted as a Massachusetts trust. President Archibald Graustein, former Boston lawyer, whose genius has been largely responsible for International Paper's persistent growth, "sticks with" the old Bay State. The same feeling of warm friendliness towards Massachusetts is evinced by President Victor M. Cutter of the great United Fruit Co., and some other vey big executives.

A few weeks ago in this column we mentioned the bright outlook for the American Printing Co. at Pull River. Now it is announced that at present American Printing Co. is operating its equipment full time, despite adverse trade conditions throughout the cotton manufacturing industry, including the printing branch. Although privately owned, American Printing is much like a great enterprise at Pull River, employing around 5000 workers. Currently the company is printing approximately 800,000 yards of cloth a day, or 3,300,000 yards per week. Its printing machines are turning out substantially full, 24 hours per day. This means that company is printing nearly or slightly over a half-mile of goods per minute.

July is going to witness a record breaking distribution of interest and dividends by American corporations.

We have had a "Coolidge market." Now I hear them talking about prosperity bases for a "Hoover market" in the street called State.

20,000 Seven-Day Workers Granted the Six-Day Week

By B. C. FORBES

New York, June 28—Progress! Twenty thousand men who have been seven-day workers have been emancipated—they are to enjoy one day's rest each week.

B. C. Forbes

This hartening news is sent to readers of this column by California's Department of Industrial Relations. The men affected and are oil workers.

* * *

How long will railway managers and certain other employers persist in working men seven days a week and every week of the year without the slightest provision for any regular respite or vacation whatsoever?

The twelve-hour day was not one white more inhuman than the seven-day week. If I had to choose between the two, I would sooner work long hours six days and have a full day off every week than work shorter hours, but be compelled to work every week-day, every Sunday, every holiday from New Year's Day to New Year's Eve.

The seven-day week is now almost entirely a thing of the past and the eight-hour day is steadily spreading. The change is working no industrial or business ruination. We all know that America has enjoyed greater prosperity since the World War than it ever enjoyed before, and this has been accomplished under the eight-hour rather than the twelve-hour day.

Clearly the next move should be to do away completely with the three-hundred-and-sixty-five-day work year.

Railway executives give as an excuse for adhering to the seven-day week the fact that trains have to run every day. Newspapers have to be published every day; certain steel manufacturing operations are conducted every day; oil drilling goes on seven days a week, and in many other lines the activities also are continuous. But that does not mean that the seven-day work-week prevails, for the vast majority have been willing to limit each man's work to six days.

Are the executives who operate our railroads less resourceful? "Where there's a will there's a way." Most of our railway heads are veterans who rose from the ranks, and when they contrast the working hours and conditions they experienced with those ruling today they feel that the employes now are well off.

* * *

Let us ask them, however, if their directors would be satisfied if they ran their passenger and freight trains on the schedule current 25 years ago. Would they have showed no improvement, if they had been able to show no difference whatsoever in operating efficiency?

The seven-day week may have been good enough 25 years ago. It is not good enough today. It is condemnable. It is indefensible.

Will the authorities and employers in every state please read carefully this official communication received from the Governor?

"A conference of oil operators was held in City Hall Building, San Francisco, Monday, June 18, 1923, under the auspices of the Department of Industrial Relations, presided over by Director Will J. French, to consider the introduction of the six-day week in place of the seven-day week. Responses favorable to the plan were received from the Standard Oil Company, Union Oil Company, General Petroleum Corporation, the Texas Company, Barnsdall Oil Company, Honolulu Consolidated Oil Company and Charles A. Sun & Co. Practically all of these companies announced that there would be no reduction in pay. The Associated Oil Company wrote that the question is under advisement. It is known that other oil companies have decided to work all their employes on the six-day a week basis.

"There was unanimity on the wisdom and humanity of the new order in opposition came from those present or from the letters sent in to the Department of Industrial Relations. Members of the Oil Workers' Union presented the view that one day's rest in seven would prove as beneficial for the industry as did the eight-hour day. All those present expressed their appreciation and pledged cooperation in the change to six days."

Governor C. C. Young and Director Will C. Stevens, of the Department of Natural Resources, sent word to the conference that they would be pleased to see the day's rest secured by the men employed in oil production. Approximately twenty thousand men will be affected by the change."

The Democratic party is expected to "stress prohibition enforcement and ignore modification." What it really wants is more prohibition and more enforcement. That's the popular thing. But you can't always say what you think.

A candidate for public school teacher, in an old-fashioned district, divided in its opinion as to the earth roundity, was asked whether he taught that the earth was round or flat. The careful teacher replied, "Teach both ways in each roundity, was asked Democrats will teach both wet and dry. The Republicans, perhaps wiser, decided to teach dry, and act wet.

Round the Links With BOBBY JONES

By BOBBY JONES
National Amateur Champion.

WALTER HAGEN has just finished another notable illustration of the folly of prognosticating the result of a golf tournament upon form displayed immediately beforehand. Remember reading just before the Compston-Hagen match that it was "generally conceded that the winner of the match will win the British Open championship."

The only trouble with predictions of that kind is that they don't concede anything when the test is four rounds of medal play. Compston won the match by a landslide, but Hagen walked off with the championship, far the richer plum of the two.

Truly, Hagen's temperament and spirit are wonderful. A lesser man would have been completely crushed by the monstrous defeat administered by Compston, but Hagen was at no time even downcast. From all accounts he was, even before he left Moor Park, decidedly cheerful over the prospects of another win for him at Sandwich.

With his characteristic philosophy he probably said to himself that if Compston were on edge at Moor Park, Hagen might be at Sandwich, and apparently he was.

AFTER the first two rounds of the championship Hagen and Sarazen occupied the same positions. Three strokes behind left them just close enough upon Jurado's heels to harass him continually, not far enough home of Compston to leave with the leader a sense of responsibility which was bound to be heavy upon him.

The margin was just great enough to cause Jurado to feel that all he had to do was keep his placement him upon the defensive while Hagen and Sarazen could be the aggressors.

I caught myself feeling sorry for Jurado even while he held to his three-stroke lead. Faced with his first big opportunity to carry off a major championship, he found himself occupying the most difficult position possible. To hold the lead from the halfway post to the finish is a hard job for even a seasoned competitor, and Jurado is by no means a veteran.

The difficulty of his task was not lessened by the fact that his closest pursuers were Hagen and Sarazen.

THESE two are probably the most determined finishers that could have been set upon his trail. But Jurado is a splendid golfer and will be heard from again. He finished in the money at St. Anne's in 1926 and each year's experience will make him harder and harder to beat.

Aside Compston in finishing third, three strokes behind Hagen, did remarkably well in the circumstances. Just as Hagen was due for a reversal of form after the Moor Park engagement, so was Compston. The game of golf does not permit a man to remain very long at the peak. Compston was to be expected at Moor Park that I expected him to fall flat at Sandwich. That he did not reflects great credit upon his ability.

GETCHELL SWELLS OLYMPIC FUND

Carroll Getchell, Harvard's business manager and ticket man, has turned over about $4000 in cash to the Olympic fund treasurer for tryout tickets.

He has sold 1600 tickets to date and Tom Ramsay something more than 500. These are reserved seat tickets, which means that about 2100 of these seats are gone. Inasmuch as there are only 2740 reserved seats, you can see what the demand really is.

Olympic Ruling

The American athletes must all come back on the S. S. President Roosevelt or pay their own fares. The Roosevelt will sail from Amsterdam on August 13 or 15 and is due in New York August 23.

CRIMSON CREW STARTS WORK FOR TRYOUTS

Two workouts on the Charles marked the start of the Harvard crew's 10-day training stretch period for the Olympic tryouts in Philadelphia. The eight who rowed against Yale last Friday took their regular positions in the shell. Because yesterday was the first time they were out in four days, both sessions were of a light nature.

Members of the crew were in good spirits yesterday. All returned to strict training. The oarsmen are quartered at the summer home of F. Clark and Bill Saltonstall at Sherborn and Milton, respectively, in order to get away from the noise and excitement of things around Harvard square.

STANLEY DE J. OSBORNE SAILING TO EUROPE

Stanley De J. Osborne went over to New York last night. He sails Saturday for Amsterdam, where he will have charge of arrangements for the American athletes and officials.

Osborne has been all over the country trying to get money for the Olympics. The colleges have given about $40,000, which is a great sum. New England colleges only gave $1 as a group contributed more money than all the rest.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN'S PLATFORM FOR BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND

For BOSTON: 1—Clean streets. 2—Solution of traffic and parking problems. 3—Better pay for honest public service. 4—An airport SECOND TO NONE. 5—Erection of a MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM to compare with any in the land, in order that Boston, properly supplied with first-class hotels, may be the premier convention city of the U. S. A.

For NEW ENGLAND: 1—Weld the six States into a unit through the activities of the New England Council, thus creating a community consciousness. 2—Promote intercourse with Central and South America, encouraging New Englanders to "turn to the sea" again. 3—Keeping everlastingly at the job of telling the rest of the country all about our unique advantages as Summer and Winter Playground of the Nation. 4—Foster the prosperity of our industries through (1) greater efficiency in production and (2) the use of modern methods in merchandising. 5—Promote in every way such natural resources as forests, water powers and fisheries. 6—Assist New England agriculture to better marketing methods.

Monuments to Many Men

When Will the WORKERS Have Their Monument? Mr. Kummer's Suggestion

Everywhere on this earth men have built monuments from the earliest ages to commemorate great events or to honor great individuals.

The ancient Druids erected their heavy stones, each with its meaning. Egyptian Pharaohs piled up gigantic pyramids with tombs prepared for their bodies.

There have been monuments to men that freed the slaves, monuments to those that enslaved millions of human beings, monuments to generals that were successful killers of men, monuments even to horses and dogs.

BUT WHERE IS THE MONUMENT TO LABOR?

THE UNKNOWN LABORER

Frederic Arnold Kummer

As we glance through the record of past centuries we find in every land monuments to the glory of the conquerors of earth, palace and pyramid, temple and tomb, but where are the monuments to the myriad toilers in the ranks who made those conquerors possible? Silent, unsung, they march down the pathway of the ages carrying temple and pyramid, palace and tomb upon their backs. With sweat and blood they built what others planned. Their endless toil raised the vast walls of Babylon, the colossal figures of the Pharaohs, the mighty towers of Nineveh. Their hands drove the galleys of Tyre and of Carthage to uncharted seas, dug the canals of Mesopotamia, tiled the fields of India, molded the bricks of Ur. From the earliest dawn of civilization they have grown man's food, fought his wars, built his temples—even carved his gods! We have raised a monument to the Unknown Soldier—why not one to that even mightier figure, the Unknown Laborer? Upon the base of his statue should be graved

TO THE UNKNOWN LABORER OF THE AGES WHOSE CEASELESS TOIL HAS CREATED ALL THE WEALTH, THE POWER, THE PROSPERITY OF THE WORLD.

Labor has created everything, from the first sharpened flint, the bow and arrow, the platform over the lakes, to the flying machines, submarines and wireless apparatus of today. Honors, titles, wealth, monuments, palaces have rewarded those that have exploited and used the workers.

The laborer, the man of skill with hand and eye, has remained unknown, unrewarded. Mr. Kummer's line, "To the Unknown Laborer of the Ages," should be written on the noblest monument ever built by man. And LABOR WOULD BUILD IT.

Work in the Garden

Honor the Woman Who Does; She Is a Producer, a Good Citizen

Not enough women are seen working in gardens. And when they are seen, sometimes they act as though they were ashamed of the work.

They ought to be ashamed to BE ashamed of it. Working in the garden is good for the health. It is good for the figure, and complexion, if you wear a sunbonnet, and keeps away useless tissue. Women, remember that if you remember nothing else.

Working in the garden is especially good for the lungs. It is good for old people if they work slowly, gently, avoid the extreme heat and remember that their hearts should beat slowly.

A woman with a good vegetable garden, a busy hoe, a relentless determination to destroy "bugs" and REAL PRIDE IN HER WORK is worthy of every man's admiration.

Also, and what is far more important, worthy of every WOMAN'S admiration. Women all work, live and dress for one another, although they don't know it. It is a wise disposition of Providence which makes woman look up to woman, the better part of the race, instead of looking DOWN at a man.

Ladies, remember Voltaire's advice—"Cultivons notre jardins"—and cultivate your garden.

Memories, Step-Children

A Hohenzollern Anniversary

On June 15, forty years ago, William Hohenzollern became King of Prussia and German Emperor. Now he is a tired old man in Holland, with a second wife, some step-children and memories.

And he may take comfort in the fact that if you don't climb so high you can't fall so far.

The trouble with the ex-Kaiser, as with many men that succeed, was simple. He virtually believed the things that men said to him about his own greatness, lost his sense of proportion and judgment. And in connection with the war made every mistake and prophecy that could have been made; thought Russia would stay out, thought England would not come in. He believed that Italy would stick to the Austro-German entente or triple alliance—wrong every time.

He Can't; You Can

But Many of Us That Might, Don't!

The mechanical man, "Televox," designed by R. J. Wensley for the Westinghouse Electric Company, talks in a deep bass voice and actually sends out reliable information. He can be made to talk in any language. But he can't THINK in any language. And thinking is the process that all the scientists in the world cannot explain.

We humans, of the old-fashioned kind, CAN think, and some of us DO.

More of us DON'T, and that's our trouble.

VIEWING LIFE FROM DEATH STANDPOINT

By DR. FRANK CRANE

WHY death? Why can't people go along living all the time? Why must everybody possess the certainty of giving up the ghost sooner or later?

There must be some reason for this eternal tragedy that stands in the background of every one of us.

Whoever made this universe and this race of men and women would not have created them with the fact of death hanging over them had there not been some good reason for it.

I am not in the secrets of the All Wise and don't pretend to know more than other people, but I have a sort of hunch that death is valuable because of the viewpoint it brings to life.

If a man always felt well, never was sick, he would get too cocky. There would be no curbing his egotism. The vanity of humankind is wonderful and death exists as a certain cure.

A woman sent me a letter. It was a letter written by a mother, just a few days before she died, to her daughter. This letter was found in an old trunk. A part of the letter reads as follows:

"My Heart's Beloved:

"As I start on this journey I am faced with the obsession that I have not always been a good mother to you. From my own trials, disappointments and experiences, I have shadowed your life and colored your impressions, and in a great measure destroyed your ideals. You saw all my little weaknesses and failings, deceits and untruthfulness and, of course, that was bound to influence your character. But won't you let me atone for that by your reshaping your life to better efforts? Cast out doubt. Love—the love that sees only good in everything, is all that makes life sweet."

There was more to the letter and much in the same strain. This letter is valuable as it shows us how different things look to us when we come to die.

If we all knew we were to die tonight there are a lot of things we wouldn't do and there are a lot of things that are worth while that we would do.

Perhaps we get our truest view of those things which are worth while in life when we look at them from the standpoint of death. So that the fact of death constantly in the world tends to ennoble life and any career of unlimited prosperity and health would tend to discredit it.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I TAKE life hard. I'm always fussing around, wondering, doubting, debating, scrapping, trying to put the whole world straight. And, of course, getting nowhere.

Then I go home and kick the furniture 'n' quarrel with anyone who'll quarrel with me 'n' put a sad record on the phonograph and weep big, wet tears of self-pity.

And after I've raised all the Cain possible I go out and water the garden.

The lilies are drooping, the mignonette is choked with dust. The tiny moss that runs between the stepping stones lies limp and gray. Here, too, as in my office, life is weary, drained.

I turn the faucet and the water spurts.

And instantly the stale air quickens into life.

A pungent freshness rises from the parched brown soil—a wave of coolness from the thirsty rocks.

The mignonette drinks eagerly from the bright spray—its gentle fragrance steals along the path. . . . The white rose opens to the gushing shower. Its petals that were sagging, dull and gray, now spread like films of silver on the shining leaves. . . . The lilies straighten and their purple heads billow like sweet, wet smoke against the darkening sky . . . The mosses drip and quiver in the gurgling dream.

The whole small garden wakes to urgent life, braces its roots deep in the quickened soil, spreads its cleaned leaves to breathe the evening air, sends up its perfume to the wall by moths. The simple gift of water has renewed its strength.

And suddenly I find it has renewed mine, too.

All day I'd fought to put the world to rights. And I had failed. But now, for one short hour, I had ceased to fight. For that one hour I had stood and given water to my thirsty flowers. I had not planned or questioned during that short time. I had not fussed about the thing I did.

An hour of simple service. Self all laid aside—

Yet that one hour had given me something I had failed to win through all the noisy combat of my busy day. Courage and peace had crept upon me in that quiet hour, cleansing and healing for my battered soul—new strength to brace my roots in the soil of life.

Together, we had taken, my small flowers and I, the gift of Living Water from our Father's hands. And in that blessed shower we had been renewed.

Yet this had only come when I had stopped my futile struggling.

And that, I think, is the deepest lesson all of us must learn. To take as flowers and little children take. Holding our dusty faces up to His great mystery—waiting without fear for Life's sure quickening. Then going on with what we have to do, cleansed, refreshed, fed to our soul's deep roots.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

Modesty is to merit as shades to figures in a picture, giving it strength and beauty. —La Bruyere.

Music is the art of the prophets, the only art that can calm the agitations of the soul; it is one of the most magnificent and delightful presents God has given us. —Luther.

Things that are not at all, are never lost. —Marlowe.

Hustling Around Houston

by O.O. McINTYRE

HOUSTON, TEXAS, June 28—The fun of this convention has been getting in and out of a hotel where most of the newspaper men are housed. Every inch of space in its halls and lobbies is packed with humanity.

The only way I was able to get into an elevator this morning was to turn to my wife with "I don't care what the doctor says. I know I haven't smallpox." We rode down alone with a pale and shaking elevator girl. But in spite of all the press there is a delightful air of rare good humor. In New York we shin kick, elbow jab and snarl, but here if you step on stranger's foot he anticipates you with: "That's all right partner."

There are a few picturesque touches of the old primitive days in Texas on Houston's street. Now and then some hilarious whoppee artist yanks out his shooter and blazes away to the air. He means no harm—just playful. But we easterners proceed to cover a city block in nothing flat. Not exactly frightened—just cautious.

Many nibby birds who have stuck along just to see what shooting fiesta is all about have limped around the rest of their lives with puckered G strings.

AT dinner last night, I sat between Mrs. Genevive Clark Thompson, daughter of the late Champ Clark and wife of a New Orleans publisher, and William Allen White. It was a Mexican dinner and as hot as a six shooter. Mrs. Thompson and White went the whole distance and in the fourth entry I turned out in search of a fire alarm box. That sort of a dinner is a good substitute for a tonsil operation and if I have a sliver of a palate left, I'm not kicking.

After dinner we all rode to River Oaks, a beautiful suburban development here which give an excellent idea of how the well-to-do Houstonians live. The estates compared favorably with many of the show places on Long Island.

THERE is a community zeal about Houston that has made it one of the finest cities in the Southwest. Five years ago after one of my annual visits to this city, I wrote, "watch Houston." That gives you a rough idea of how you must watch my stuff to know what is going on.

Now I am going to expand that prediction to "watch Texas." And I am not at all fearful of taking up too much territory. In visits to Houston I have often mentioned Slim, one of Houston's best known characters. He is still here. Slim is a sort of male Texas Guinan of a stall and counter lunch—serving wise cracks with short orders. If laughing helps digestion, Slim is a gift to the world.

THEY are still predicting when the convention will be over. The best advice for the folks back home is to expect us when you see us. Once a convention gets into a snarl it is like a kitten in a ball of yarn. Time and patience are needed.

F. J. MURPHY and Charlie Adam from New York office—not exactly mine but I have desk room there—are preparing tomorrow to send for their wives and another shirt apiece, so one never knows.

I AM learning to live in a trunk. I was not assigned to a room here. It is just a crevice and it is necessary to lean out the window to shave. Visitors who walk in have to back out. There is no turning room. Several times I have called up the assistant manager but the moment his phone rings he pulls a Henry M. Stanley. You have to send an expedition to find him.

JUST to tout a little, the newspapermen have been shown no consideration whatever in accommodations. The spirit has been kind but the arrangement committee has not been on the job, also the clerks and others associated with one Houston hotel in particular should absolutely turn little of the same hospitality that makes Texas great.

IN many years of knocking about the world, I have never met such impertinence on the part of a hotel as is accorded by some of them here. That is not quite fair to Houston, which has given so much of its time and money to make this affair the success it was. A hotel clerk can do more for the good of his town in meeting visitors than the mayor.

The Detective School

Among other graduates of the current season are the "dry" agents, who are going to school to learn how to be liquor detectives. What degree they will get on completion of the course hasn't been announced. Maybe M. S.—Master of Snooping. Or maybe D. V.—Doctor of Volsteadism. To enforce the eighteenth amendment without violating the fourth or fifth takes training. We hope the agents prove apt scholars. At present the law of the land and the principles of individual right are too hopelessly at variance to be brought into harmony by anybody who does not know his Sherlock Holmes.

Frankness

The fact is disclosed that something like two million copies of campaign speeches were "franked" by Congressmen during the recent Presidential primaries.

Inasmuch as that is what the franking privilege is for, we can see no especial reason for surprise.

The typical franked speech is not precisely our ideal of the most fascinating literature. But so long as there are citizens who find instruction in them, they will doubtless continue.

And the fact that they continue is proof presumptive that they are valued—if only by their makers.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

MAY I be brave as some have been in all the ages since Earth's youth, and may I, greatly daring, win to shining realms of stainless Truth.

For Truth is for the brave alone, no coward heart may claim her grace, and only valiant souls have known the matchless magic of her face.

May I this much of courage gain: To keep an inner flame alight, as priests their temple fires, nor stain the shrine for any false delight.

May I, Truth's lowest votary, deterred by neither scorn nor praise of high or low, still dare to be none other than myself always!
